Britain Wonders.
Prohibition Politics.
An Advertising Job.
The Wall St. Shivers.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE

CHANGES COME suddenly. Britishers wonder what this period of dull business, unemployment, and declining foreign markets means to the British Empire.

France has risen from the war, enriched in territory and money, with two billions in gold, the world's highest per capita gold holdings.

ENGLAND IS discouraged, almost convinced that free trade spells destruction, but fearing to abandon it on an island that is not self-supporting.

However, prosperity is not in bank accounts, or gold reserve. It's in intelligence and courage, and the British have both.

PROHIBITION IN politics interests those interested in their vote, about one-half of the people.

Mr. Roosevelt, wet Democratic candidate in New York, has gained strength by dealing roughly with Tammany Hall and the refusal of its important men to "waive immunity" before the grand jury.

ORDINARILY IT would be dangerous for Democratic candidates to antagonize Tammany Hall, which has power to cut the throat of any candidate.

But Tammany knows that if Gov. Roosevelt is not elected, Mr. Tuttle will be elected, and Tammany prefers to be whipped with Democratic whips, rather than with Republican scorpions.

ELLIOT ROOSEVELT, son of the governor of New York, started in the advertising business yesterday with Albert Frank & Co. The young man, 20 years old, six feet two inches high, passed his examinations for Princeton, but decided that he would learn more in business than he would learn in college.

THE YOUNG MAN'S choice of an advertising career was wise, since he wants to be useful as well as prosperous.

The problem of the world is distribution. Production is more than adequate. The secret of distribution unlimited lies in advertising.

MR. BADENOCH, chairman of the Board of Trade Committee on Business Conduct, says in Chicago:

"Why shouldn't the Russian government hedge on the Chicago market? I can give no reason why they shouldn't."

It seems that Russia wasn't really planning to lower the price of wheat to "spite and frighten capitalism." As Russia has gigantic quantities of wheat for sale, that's probably true.

WALL STREET continues to lack confidence in its beloved country, and puts prices lower. A good salesman could sell a large quantity of sack cloth and ashes at the corner of Broad and Wall streets.

Wall Street knows just what is back of some stock issues running into the tens of millions of shares, cooked up to meet the gambling mania.

The stocks that represent real values are suffering because of the watered stock skeleton in the closet.

THERE ARE STOCKS in Wall Street selling for less than half their worth now, less than a quarter or a tenth of what they will be worth five and 10 years hence.

There are other stocks selling for real money that are worth nothing.

IN OLD-FASHIONED whist the motto used to be "when in doubt take the trick." Wall Street's motto is "when in doubt, discard your aces, that you may hold on to your deuces."

WHAT BECAME of all the money that all the people think they have lost? Who has got the thousands of millions lost in stocks by Americans, and the other thousands of millions lost by Europeans that gambled in the American stock book? What became of all that money? Who got it? Was it real money, or imaginary?

MR. SINCLAIR, the oil man, has $72,500,000 cash, ready to loan, which nobody seems to want. Does that seem like a poverty-stricken, ruined nation?

He got the seventy-two millions from Standard Oil of Indiana that bought something he had for sale, and paid cash. That doesn't seem "poor."

WHAT'S THE MATTER with us? Is there really ANYTHING the matter with us, except lack of courage, and the fact that some backbones that were made of granite in September, 1929, have suddenly changed to mush in September, 1930?

CLEVELAND'S REDS PLAN OUTBURST

Post Handbills Announcing Demonstration as Police Mass to Prevent Trouble

International News Service.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 30.—Special police details were formed here today following reports that a demonstration was being planned by Cleveland Communists upon the arrival in the city Thursday of President Herbert Hoover to deliver an address at the fifty-sixth annual convention of the American Bankers' Association.

Thousands of handbills have been passed out to the public, according to police. Posters have been pasted on windows at various points throughout the city. It was reported that several hundred Communists planned to participate in the demonstration.

Chief of Police George J. Matowitz said the police department was "ready for anything that may take place."

President Hoover will arrive in Cleveland Thursday morning. He will be guarded by nearly 100 Secret Service men and police officers.

GRANT VOTE MACHINE DELAY

County Extends Delivery Date On Company's Petition; Election Hopes Killed

Predictions that Allegheny County would have no voting machines in use for the November election were verified today.

The Poole Engineering and Machine Company, of Baltimore, received a 90-day extension on its contract to supply the first 70 machines, due October 1.

This action by the County Commissioners was taken as conclusive that there will be no machines available for the election, despite the original promise that 300 machines probably would be delivered by October 15. Attorney H. D. Hirsh, local counsel for the company, previously had announced several hundred machines had been completed.

BLAMES SUIT

Dudley Shoemaker, vice president of the company, blamed the failure to supply the machines on the suit brought by Francis S. Guthrie attacking the validity of the contract and on the "continual harassing of the company" since the contract was first awarded, August 15.

Since the suit was instituted the company had let down in its intensive efforts to have 70 machines ready by October 1, Shoemaker asserted. Asked by Commissioner C. C. McGovern to explain how the company had been interfered with, Shoemaker replied:

"Men have tried to get into our plant and it has been necessary to double our police guard. One of our trucks loaded with materials was taken into a garage and burned at Aberdeen, Md."

QUESTION REPEATED

McGovern asked:

"Have you people built any machines for delivery tomorrow?

Shoemaker appeared not to catch the question which was repeated. He replied:

"We have a quantity of machines in our plant for revamping."

In further explanation of the delay Shoemaker said:

"It wouldn't be good business to proceed in view of the county controller's statement that he would not pay us if th injunction suit prevailed and the general harassment."

McGovern:

"If this board grants you an extension will you go ahead?"

Shoemaker:

"Yes."

Attorney O. K. Eaton, of counsel for the company, said if the injunction suit went to the Supreme Court it likely could be decided by January. A hearing on Guthrie's suit which seeks to enjoin the Poole Company from carrying out its $1,000,000 contract and to have a readvertisement for bids, is cheduled for October 6.

Army Speeds Soldier Home To Bury Mother Here

When Sergt. A. C. Hayden, of the United States Army, arrives in Brooklyn tomorrow morning on an Army transport, he will be rushed to Mitchel Field, Long Island, and there he will board an Army airplane that will speed him westward to attend the funeral tomorrow afternoon of his mother, Mrs. Rosina Hayden, of Swissvale.

The War Department yesterday granted the use of an Army plane after Representative Clyde Kelly of Edgewood, had made a request that all facilities be made available to Hayden so that he could arrive in time for the funeral.

Mrs. Hayden died Friday in her home at 7500 Calumet street.

Sergt. Hayden is just concluding an enlistment in Battery C, Second Field Artillery, and had been stationed at the Canal Zone.

He was en route home on the transport San Mihiel when informed of his mother's death.

Members of the family appealed to Representative Kelly to expedite passage of the son.

The War Department yesterday instructed Hayden by radio to communicate on arrival with the commanding officer at Mitchel Field, who will furnish a plane to make the trip to Pittsburgh.

Grimes said:

Roosevelt Renominated; Smith Scores Hoover Administration

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 30.—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt was unanimously renominated by voice vote at the Democratic state convention here today after his name had been placed in nomination by former Gov. Alfred E. Smith in a speech attacking the Hoover administration, deriding the stand of New York Republicans on prohibition and urging officeholders unfaithful to their trust be driven from the Democratic party.

LEHMAN RENOMINATED

Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman also was renominated in the same manner.

John J. Bennett, Kings County lawyer, was nominated by acclamation for attorney general, as was Morris S. Tremaine for comptroller.

Appearance of the former governor was the signal for an ovation, the crowds on floor and in gallery applauding and cheering while the band played "Sidewalks of New York."

SYMPATHY FOR G. O. P.

Turning to national affairs, Smith said he wanted "to give the Republicans all the sympathy they can get from the administration of President Hoover." He derided the Republican platform declaration on unemployment and said that a friend gave him a pocket piece, on one side of which was the inscription "Hoover's Lucky Piece" and on the other side "four years of prosperity." He told his friend, he said, that he could not accept it because if he ever tried to deposit it in a bank he might go to jail.

When Mr. Smith announced his next topic as "prohibition" the audience laughed. The Republi-

They were introduced by James A. Simpson, managing director, and the speeches were broadcast by WCAE.

Large numbers of police were rushed to the scene and a heavy guard was thrown about the presidential palace. The students grappled with the officers, attempting to disarm them.

Suddenly some one shouted

"Shoot to kill!"

The police opened fire and several students fell. A woman leaning from a balcony watching the disturbance in the street below was wounded in the cheek. For the next 25 minutes a battle was waged during which many shots were fired by both sides.

Princess Elizabeth Measured for Kilt

BALMORAL, Scotland, Sept. 30.—(AP.)—King George's little granddaughter, Princess Elizabeth, has just been measured for her first kilt. It is to be made of Inverness tartan.

CONGRESS INQUIRY INTO OIL LEASE CHARGES DEMANDED

WILBUR AIDE READY FOR QUIZ

Secretary's Accuser Must Be Heard, Senator Asserts; Sift Political Pressure

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—A congressional airing appeared likely today for the charges of favoritism to large oil companies brought against Secretary Wilbur by Ralph S. Kelley, in resigning as chief of the field division of the Federal land office in Denver.

The [illegible] refused to accept Kelley's resignation but announced he is to be suspended from office, awaiting a full investigation.

KELLEY READY FOR QUIZ

Kelley in New York last night said he did not regard himself any longer an employe of the Interior Department and restated the charges made in his letter of resignation, which he made public Sunday.

The former land office man added he would be prepared to amplify his charges later, and would be ready to appear.

Nye termed the charges amazing and said:

"Kelley will have to be heard in Congress."

Secretary Wilbur made a vigorous defense of his oil-land policy and said he had directed Kelley to file immediately the names of complainers he claimed had been favored with specific details of [illegible].

"POLITICAL PRESSURE"

The charges hinged on the disposal of public lands in Colorado which Kelley asserted contained petroleum deposits in the form of oil shale which, even at present low prices, would exceed fifty billion dollars in value.

He asserted that [illegible] political pressure in the office of the Interior Secretary, the large oil companies had received favorable consideration [illegible] charge to some of these lands.

Wilbur said the leases for oil shale had been issued under his administration and further that action had been brought to forfeit all claims to such lands on which the required assessment work of $100 a year had not been done.

HITLER PAPER HINTS PUTSCH

MUNICH, Bavaria, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler's newspaper, Voelkischer Beobachter, today published a warning to the government that if Chancellor Bruening resorts to extra-parliamentary means to force his program of financial reform, his government will become illegal and thereby summon the people to similar illegality.

The newspaper referred to reports that the Hindenburg-Bruening government proposed to see its reform policies through even if exercise of the powers of a dictator and adjournment of the forthcoming Reichstag should be necessary.

The newspaper statement was taken in government circles to mean that Hitler was ready for another putsch in spite of his promise of peace if the government leaders should sufficiently irritate him.

The Hitler newspaper publishes a reminder to President Von Hindenburg that the constitution contains an article providing for impeachment of the president.

It said:

SCORES CORRUPTION

The former Governor's statement regarding corruption came in the course of his criticism of the platform adopted by the Republican state convention at Albany last week. He said:

"The Republican platform speaks of corruption in the government of the cities of New York and Albany and stresses improper and corrupt practices with respect to the judiciary. Certainly that plank cannot be aimed against the Democratic party as a whole or against Gov. Roosevelt or his associates in the state administration."

"If there are men either in official or party position who have been unfaithful to their trust, the great army of loyal, faithful and devoted Democrats join with Gov. Roosevelt in his determination to remove them from public office, to drive them from the ranks of the party and to use the full power of the law to bring them to the bar of justice."

Gang Victim's Body Discovered in Ditch

DENNISON, O., Sept. 30.—The mutilated body of an unidentified man was found in a ditch in the Point Breeze section here early today. He had been dead about three hours. A butcher knife and iron pipe were beside the body.

Husband Ill, Wife Shoots Self, Dies

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Mrs. Monroe Buckley, 33, of Ardmore, died today in Bryn Mawr Hospital from the effects of a self-inflicted bullet wound. CRASH REVEALS RUM HAUL

One hundred gallons of moonshine whisky were found in a wrecked automobile from which a woman, who said she was Mrs. Mamie Labranco, 41, of 1725 Cliff street, was dragged unconscious early today after it had collided head-on with another machine at Penn avenue and Montier street, Wilkinsburg. Mrs. Labranco is in the Columbia Hospital suffering severe injuries to the head. A suspicious person charge has been lodged against her by police.

The driver of the machine abandoned the car and left her alone. Mrs. Labranco told police. She said she had accepted a lift into Pittsburgh from Wilmerding and did not know the driver. Police are seeking the owner. The other machine had been stolen in Rankin and was occupied by four Negro youths, police say.

Police arrested Brisco Winkfield, 17, Negro, of Fifth avenue, Rankin, when he applied at the Columbia Hospital for medical attention. After questioning him they took into custody Daniel Arnold, 19, Negro, of Third street, Rankin, and George Downes, 17, Negro, of 341½ Fourth street, Rankin. They were searching for another youth who, they say, also was with the three prisoners in the stolen machine.

The two men, confined in the same cell since their capture, September 4, pried open the bars at the top of their cell and broke through the roof by the same method, according to jail officials.

Coolidge Tells Voters To Make Careful Study

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Sept. 30.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Practically all nominations and all platforms to be voted upon in the November elections have been completed. Men have made great sacrifices of blood and treasure to secure the privilege and right of self government. We have extended the franchise to women. All who are eligible should register and vote.

Calvin Coolidge

The foundation of popular government depends upon the affirmative action of the people at the polls. It is time to begin a careful study to determine what principles and what candidates should command support. The judgment of the voter should be an informed judgment. The purpose of a campaign is to educate the voters on the issues and the ability and character of the candidates.

Elections are the most serious business in which our citizens engaged. On their results depend not only the welfare of the people but the demonstration of their ability to govern themselves with safety and justice to each other. The greatest peace time test of the moral power of a people is the ability to cast a disinterested, unselfish and patriotic vote. At the present time the country needs the most conscientious thought it can give in choosing officers. Only such decision is worthy of a free people.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Tomorrow morning she is expected to speak briefly at the opening of the convention and will leave Indianapolis for Cleveland to join the President, who will address the American Bankers' Association there.

BANKERS URGED TO ASK DRY REPEAL

Erie Man Puts Resolution Up To Cleveland Convention; Prohibition Held Big Issue

International News Service.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 30.—A proposal that the American Bankers' Association go on record as favoring repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, and recommending enactment of legislation setting up federal and state liquor control in its stead, was presented to the resolutions committee of the association here today.

STRONG BACKING

It is understood to have the backing of the large Pennsylvania delegation in attendance at the bankers' convention.

In offering his resolution, Pasqualicchio declared prohibition has greatly hurt the country and that it has been responsible for an increase in state and federal taxes.

"IMPORTANT ISSUE"

"Prohibition cannot be dodged as a political issue," Pasqualicchio asserted. "It is a national issue of the first importance and I think it is particularly fitting that an organization such as the American Bankers' Association take up the problem and lend all the weight of its influence for the good of the country."

At least 50 per cent of the present depression in business and industry is due to prohibition, Pasqualicchio charged.

The present Canadian government liquor-control laws were recommended by the banker, who predicted that if they were put into effect in the United States "taxes would go down at least 25 per cent within three years."

As the search for George C. Skidmore, suspect in the Liberty Bell gasoline station killing and the shooting of three highway patrolmen in the hills of Centre County, spread into Canada today, Leonard J. Skidmore, who led police to his brother's hiding place, was released on habeas corpus proceedings here today.

IN CARE OF AUNT

He was given into the custody of an aunt, Mrs. Mary Clark Myers, of 32 Dinsmore avenue, Crafton, but was to be rearrested according to city detectives, on a charge of accessory after the fact of murder. His mother, Mrs. Martha Skidmore, was in the courtroom.

Police today broadcast the description of Henry Uccellino, alias White, of Oneida street, Mt. Washington, said to have taken part in the gasoline station holdup in which a crippled attendant was killed more than a week ago.

A description of George Skidmore, also broadcast, stated that he bore fresh powder burns on the right hand and arm as the result of a premature explosion of a black powder bomb used to open the drawer of the cash register of the Liberty Bell Service station.

UNDER INDICTMENT

Uccellino already is under indictment on a manslaughter charge in connection with the fatal shooting last April of a boy near the Olympia Park target range. He is believed to have fled to a Western city. He was last seen on Mt. Washington Wednesday night.

Police are holding Eugene Batdorf, 20, of McKees Rocks, who, they say, committed the holdup with Uccellino and George Skidmore.

William Dutton, who was captured with Leonard Skidmore, is still being held.

"Both George and Leonard Skidmore conducted themselves as gentlemen, were good students and behaved in perfect obedience to the rules and regulations of Bellefonte Academy while attending that institution," Headmaster James R. Hughes stated today.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Maj. J. Sydney Owens, commander of the 28th Division Aero Squadron of the Pennsylvania National Guard, declined today to discuss charges made against him by three officers of the unit, other than to say that no grounds existed for the complaints.

The three officers who resigned from the National Guard after making the charges alleged Maj. Owens was incompetent, that he arranged to take beer to the summer encampment at Hebron, Md., in Army trucks, that he sanctioned the showing of indecent motion pictures to officers and men and that the summer encampment was devoid of military discipline.

The accusing officers are Capt. George Newman Hyland, Lansdowne; Lieut. George Joseph Bortle, Germantown, and Lieut. William O. Ilgenfritz, Upper Darby. Maj. Owens, credited with bringing down five enemy planes during the war and twice winner of National Guard air races, lives at Glenside.

INDIANA CHEERS ADMIRAL BYRD

By LEE CURRAN,
Staff Correspondent.

INDIANA, Pa., Sept. 30.—An ovation for Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, Antarctic explorer, rivaling any ever given a great national hero, greeted the noted flier from the minute he stepped from the train in Johnstown, passing through a dozen villages and reaching its climax before a reviewing stand here.

He will lecture tonight in the Ritz Theater on "Little America," showing motion pictures of the ice-bound Antarctic, a region he has made familiar to the world through the camera and through his own description.

The Byrd party was met at Johnstown by Dr. Charles R. Foster, president of the State Teachers' College here, and hundreds of citizens in automobiles. All along the highways and in towns school children and grown-ups formed lanes of cheering admirers, with flags waving, and children presenting Byrd with armfuls of flowers. At Homer City and Mechanicsburg the turnouts were particularly large.

PITTSBURGH TOMORROW

Arriving here, the whole populace, including more than 1,000 students of the college, joined in the parade, which Byrd and officials reviewed in front of the high school. Military bodies, service clubs and a half dozen bands marched.

DARROW AIDS GANGSTERS IN COURT

Famous Lawyer Frees Two 'Public Enemies' on Bond; Judge Lyle Threatened

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—Clarence Darrow stood up in court yesterday for two "public enemies" and got them out on bond in five minutes.

He termed the arrest of the "enemies"—George (Red) Barker and William (Three-Fingered Jack) White—as "outrageous." He said:

"If the authorities wish to harass the lawless, they should do it legally. There is no such charge in law as a 'public enemy.'

"The vagrancy law, under which Barker and White were arrested, provides for release under $100 bond. Yet men are being taken to court, charged with vagrancy and made to furnish $10,000 bonds."

DARROW "COMEBACK"

Darrow has been in retirement from the law for two years. He said he agreed to take the case of Barker and White because he always had been close to labor unions. Barker is business agent for the teamsters' union.

The surrender of White, a former convict, and Barker, who also has served a prison sentence, left 20 of the 26 "public enemies" still unaccounted for.

LYLE ON "SPOT"

Judge Lyle, who signed all the vagrancy warrants against the "enemies," and who has taken an active part in the effort to bring Chicago gang leaders to justice, heard last night that he had been marked for murder.

A Negro, who identity was not revealed, reported to the state's attorney that he had overheard three men in a South Side speakeasy discussing a plot to assassinate Judge Lyle.

FUGITIVE FOUND VICTIM

Search for Harold Conliff, reputed Aiello gangster and "payoff" man, was abandoned today with the discovery of new evidence uncovered by police which indicates he was the latest of gangdom's "ride" victims.

The missing man's automobile was taken from the drainage canal near Summit two weeks ago. Detectives today announced that a bloody piece of Conliff's necktie was taken from the car and analysis showed it had been used in the slaying.

PRESS WARNED BY NYE GROUP

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—The usual action of the Senate Campaign Fund Committee in warning publishers against further publication of attacks on its inquiry into the Illinois senatorial primary today provoked the interest of political leaders.

The committee's action was without precedent in recent congressional history. Four members united in issuing the warning. They declared they had repeatedly denied the McCormick charges that committee agents invaded her home, jifled her papers and tapped her telephone wires. They said newspapers had ignored these denials and that hereafter they would hold each newspaper publisher personally responsible if his newspaper again printed her charges.

CENTRALIA, Ill., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Ruth Hanna McCormick last night declared that the Senate Campaign Funds Committee was attempting to throttle the press.

This charge was contained in a brief statement answering the one issued in Washington by the Senate committee.

Auto Stolen, Thumbs Ride; Own Car Picks Him Up

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—(AP)—A thumb-wagger, to coin a word, is a person who stands in the road and yanks his thumb at passing motorists in the hope that one of them will stop and give him a lift.

A car came along. The driver, a cheery soul, stopped the car and Olson got in.

Olso dropped into the seat. He glanced at the instrument board. He was amazed.

As soon as they reached an intersection where there was a policeman, Olson summoned the officer.

"Arrest this man," he said, pointing to the driver, one Ralph Klingenmaier.

BLAST WRECKS WAREHOUSE

Eleven men who worked there owe their lives to the fact that the time for reporting for work was changed today from 9 to 10 o'clock.

The force of the blast tore off the roof and a section of the wall at the back of the building and rocked the section within a radius of 10 blocks. Windows were broken in many homes and in nearby plants and business houses.

FEAR OIL EXPLOSION

Hundreds rushed from their homes in fear of an explosion at a nearby oil plant.

Police reserves, ambulances and a rescue crew from the Mine Safety Appliance Company in Braddock avenue were rushed to the scene, where police established a safety zone because of the ammonia fumes.

USE GAS MASKS

Firemen donned gas masks and soon closed the leak in the ammonia pipes leading to the refrigerating plant.

About 50 persons were in the plant when the gas let go with its attendant menace of ammonia vapor. Police and firemen were amazed, considering the force of the explosion that there was no loss of life or that more were not seriously injured. The sturdy construction of the building, which was comparatively new, is credited with saving occupants.

The Runco boy was playing in his home when debris from the wrecked building crashed into the room, bruising and cutting the lad slightly.

Battalion Chief John Callaghan estimated the damage to the warehouse at $35,000. Loss on other structures in the neighborhood could not be estimated.

CLEARING HOUSE ON JOBS URGED

Harry Bastow, president of the Allied Boards of Trades, and A. V. Snell, formerly of the Chamber of Commerce, now with the trade boards, today suggested to the county commissioners that a clearing house for small jobs to relieve the unemployment situation be organized in Pittsburgh.

They said the plan was being used successfully in Cincinnati, and that $10,000 a year probably would pay for a director and assistant here. Commissioner C. C. McGovern moved the appointment of such a commission, but there was no second. Commissioner J. G. Armstrong suggested the matter be referred to the county solicitor to determine the legality of creating such a body.

Additions to the county payroll, announcement of which brought a flock of applicants to the county road department yesterday, will be made gradually and in the districts where the county will do necessary work on roads this winter, according to Armstrong.

HELEN DENIES DIVORCE 'PLOT'

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—(AP.)—Helen Kane, baby-talk singer, avoided a threatened citation for contempt by answering questions at a hearing in the bankruptcy of the Bond Dress Company.

Replying to questions by Simon L. Spiro, attorney for the Bank of United States, Miss Kane denied she had told Michael Kletz, vice president of the bank, that she intended to divorce her husband to marry Murray Posner, head of the defunct firm.

Posner, on the stand, also denied he had told Kletz he intended to marry Miss Kane after she should get a divorce.

Posner is alleged to have turned over $50,000 to Miss Kane before the firm went into bankruptcy. The singer has asserted the $50,000 was repayment of money she had given Posner to invest for her in Liberty bonds.

The girl was slain after a struggle with her assailant. She was shot through the throat, while Morris was shot in the body as he sat at the wheel of his automobile.

Endeavoring to reconstruct the circumstances of the tragedy, Stockton police expressed the belief that robbery was the prime motive.

The slain man's purse, empty, was found by his side in the seat of the automobile. The girl had been stripped of her jewelry, all of which was taken by the bandit-killers, except a bracelet, found in the road where it had apparently been dropped by the robbers as they fled from the scene.

G. O. P. APPEALS TO PUBLIC FOR STATE FUND

Jonholders' Assessment Out, On Pinchot's Ultimatum, Martin Launches Drive

HARRISBURG, Sept. 30.—Describing the 1930 Pennsylvania campaign as the most vital to the Republican party since the World War, the Republican state committee today appealed to Republican voters of the state to contribute to the party's campaign fund.

The appeal was issued by Gen. Edwin Martin, chairman of the committee. It was said [illegible] the first ever made to the people of the state by the Republican party as a whole.

PINCHOT BANS JOB LEVY

[illegible] for the general appeal is a political assessment of [illegible] salaried [illegible] in the state campaign, banned [illegible] Governor Gifford Pinchot, Democratic nominee before [illegible] was dissolved. The assessments [illegible] threatened to withhold [illegible] campaign, separated [illegible] assessments were levied this year.

In 1928, the [illegible] contributions amounted to approximately $500,000.

"The campaign of 1930 probably is the most important to Pennsylvania Republicans of any in the last dozen years," Chairman Martin said. "The Republicans of the nation are watching the Keystone State.

BIG ELECTION JOB

"We have not only to elect a United States senator, a governor, a lieutenant governor, a secretary of internal affairs and three members of our Appellate Courts, but the whole state delegation in Congress, 32 state senators and the entire State House of Representatives.

Martin [illegible] requested [illegible] for [illegible] contributions. Checks, he said, should be made payable to the Republican State Committee and mailed to 1705 Pennsylvania Building, Fifteenth and Chestnut streets, Philadelphia.

FIRST VARE AID FOR PINCHOT

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30 (U.S.)—[illegible] political circles thrown into a turmoil today by the reflection of another state leader in the [illegible] of Gifford Pinchot, supporting the governorship of the [illegible] election.

The latest [illegible] to Pinchot cause is David T. Watson, [illegible] real estate assessor, and Republican city committeeman from Twenty-third Ward. He is [illegible] of the late William S. Vare organization that [illegible] to come out openly and announce himself for the entire Republican ticket, including Pinchot for governor. His stand caused much [illegible] what effect it would have on other leaders who [illegible] the Vare [illegible] ranks.

Watson said:

Personally, I am in favor of a liberal and drastic modification of the Volstead act. However, this issue is under control of our national government and not state government.

NUMBERSAGENT FINED $50

Edward Craior, 40, of 225 East General Robinson street, who admitted writing numbers, was fined $50, with the alternative of 30 days in jail, by Magistrate Ray Schneider in South Side Police Court today.

Mrs. [illegible] Craior, 106 East General Robinson street, testified she [illegible] $1 in cash [illegible] house [illegible] Saturday and that [illegible] placed a number [illegible] ceiling bet to $54. At 4 p.m. that day, she said, Craior returned her dollar, saying he had lost his book and couldn't pay her the winnings.

Craior testified he had returned the dollar before the winning number came out. In response to questions by Magistrate Schneider, he testified he was writing numbers for a Mr. Green who sells papers in the Bessemer Building. Craior said he sells papers at General Robinson and Federal streets.

Betty Nuthall High In Praise of U. S.

PLYMOUTH, England, Sept. 30 (AP)—Admirers of Betty Nuthall, British tennis star, who returned today from America's conquests, invaded her cabin on the Majestic this morning to congratulate her on bringing the American tennis title to England. She told her visitors:

The women of England seem to be upholding the tradition right now, and it makes me ever so happy to think that I've done a little bit too. I had a wonderful time in America. Everybody was so awfully kind.

Art of Thinking, Topic of Dr. Petty

MEADVILLE, Pa., Sept. 30 (AP)—The majority of people don't think, the Rev. Wallace Petty, Pittsburgh pastor, said in an address here before the annual dinner of the Y. M. C. A. His topic was "The Fine Art of Thinking," and he said it was lonely, difficult and dangerous to think in America today.

Dr. Petty is pastor of the First Baptist Church, Pittsburgh, and is a well known banquet speaker.

Middle Age Blamed For Jazz Life Evil

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 30.—Middle age, not youth, is blamed for the evils of jazz life by Luther A. Weigle, dean of the Yale Divinity School. At opening exercises he said:

"Youth is clean and decent, today as always, till affected by wrong influences. It is not the passions of youth. It is the befuddled counsels of the older generations that are swinging the world toward paganism and ruin."

WALTON LEAGUE OPENS SESSION

HARRISBURG, Sept. 30 (AP)—The annual meeting of the Pennsylvania division Izaak Walton League, opened here with renewed efforts manifest to procure more stringent legislation against stream pollution.

Grover C. Ladner, prominent Philadelphia conservationist, introduced a resolution reaffirming the organization's support of the McCrossin bill providing for injunctive action by district attorneys and city solicitors against industries accused of polluting streams. The bill introduced in the last Legislature by the late Senator Lawrence E. McCrossin, failed of passage.

The resolutions committee approved the Ladner resolution almost as soon as it was submitted. Leaders of the state division informally discussed introduction of another resolution pledging the association's support to Gifford Pinchot, Republican gubernatorial nominee, who in an answer to a questionnaire before the primary election, said he favored legislation "such as the McCrossin bill." The Democratic State Committee, they said, failed to mention stream pollution in the state platform.

GROUP TO TRY MINISTER

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30 (A.P.)—A judicial committee of seven will try the Rev. Dr. Donna Grey Barnhouse, pastor of the Tenth Presbyterian Church of this city, on charges of conduct unbecoming a minister and violation of his ordination vows.

A proposal for the entire Presbytery to hear Dr. Barnhouse was voted down after a stormy session at a special meeting of the Presbytery.

Dr. Barnhouse was indicted by the Presbytery on charges of violating laws of that body and criticising other ministers. These charges grew out of his talk over the radio from a theater in Upper Darby and preaching in the Chester Presbytery, which is outside the Philadelphia jurisdiction.

TORCH BURNS MAN, 4 BOYS

AMBRIDGE, Pa., Sept. 30—Sprayed with gasoline fumes when an old torch exploded in the home of Thomas Prevenslik, Ambridge, four boys and a man were burned, two seriously.

Clements Prevenslik, 9, of Pittsburgh, and Henry Prevenslik, 8, Ambridge, are reported in a serious condition at the Sewickley Hospital. Henry Prevenslik, 8, and Paul Prevenslik, 13, and their father, Thomas Prevenslik, 32, and Henry Rosmensky, 9, a neighbor, were treated by a physician.

The boys had found the old iron torch, filled it with gasoline and then attempted to light it, police say. The father was burned when he attempted to put out the fire.

Rochester Boxer Shot, Woman Held

ROCHESTER, Pa., Sept. 30—With a bullet wound in the chest, George A. Compton, 22, a boxer, is in critical condition in the Rochester Hospital. Mary Brown, 24, accused of the shooting, is in jail pending a hearing.

The woman told police the shot was not intended for Compton, who had gone to her house with Gust Jersey, a friend, who claimed some money had been stolen from him.

Accused of Causing Oil Well Damage

FRANKLIN, Pa., Sept. 30.—William Johnson, 45, is in jail here charged with feloniously causing damage to oil wells and endangering lives of employes of the Kay, Nutting and Thatcher lease. Johnson, it is claimed, turned air into the lines of the gasoline plant of the company. An explosion which occurred a month ago is attributed to him.

Canonsburg Teller Held in Bank Theft

Mohler, 28, charged with embezzlement from the Citizen's Trust Company of Canonsburg, where he had been an employe for eight years, waived hearing before Justice of the Peace T. M. Reese and is held in the county jail in default of bail. The shortage is reported to have been between $8,000 and $9,000.

The October Events begin tomorrow at HORNE'S

Oriental Rug Bazaar

Pittsburgh's greatest Oriental floor covering sale begins tomorrow—at the lowest prices in years. It brings fine carpets in wide selections, from the smallest mats to large and unusual room sizes, at substantial reductions from regular prices. Since the purchase of our present stocks, a new tariff has increased the duty, in some cases by a large margin. This, together with temporarily depressed prices in Oriental rugs, makes this one of the most advantageous times to buy that we have ever known.

Four Important Groups—Room-Size Rugs

Values Not Equaled in Years, and Not Likely to be Equaled Again

$145 — Heavy Persian rugs, approximately 9x12 ft., at little more than the price of better grade domestic rugs. Unwashed rugs, in Oriental color effects, mostly the fashionable rose shade. All-over Persian designs, as well as the medallion type.

$195 — An exceptional group of Persian rugs, approximately 9x12 ft., possessing a rich luster and beautiful, sparkling colors that portray the soft blending of traditional Persian treatment. A variety of weaves from which to make selection.

$285 — Hamadan carpets of lustrous, deep pile, approximately 9x12 ft. Lovely silky pieces in glowing Persian colors of rose, deep red, blue and copper. In the more intricate type of design ordinarily found only in more expensive pieces.

$395 — Sarouk rugs of the finest quality, approximately 9x12 ft. Rich in color and the traditional designs that have made this type of rug one of the most favored in the finest homes of the country. Every rug a magnificent specimen.

Small Oriental Rugs of Decorative Character

Lilihan Mats (limited quantity), averaging 2x3 ft., $13.50.

Choice Sarouk Mats, 2x2½ or 3 ft., $22.50 and $27.50.

Karabagh, Kurdistan and Hamadan Runners, 3 ft. wide by 9 to 12 ft. in length, very desirable and scarce pieces, $45.00 and $55.00.

Fine Persian Sarouks, averaging 3x5 ft., $69.50.

Small Room Rugs, from 4 to 4.7 ft. by 6 to 7 ft., including heavy Mossouls, Kurdistans and Karabaghs, $45.00.

PASTORS ARRIVE HERE FOR M. E. CONFERENCE

Session Will Be Held in Mt. Lebanon Church; Reception Set Tonight

By THE REV. C. T. MURDOCK
Special Correspondent.

The preachers are arriving today for the one hundred seventh annual conference at the Mt. Lebanon Methodist Episcopal Church. The best homes of the community will be open for their entertainment. Neighbor churches of all denominations are co-operating in fraternal spirit and many of the meetings connected with the conference will be held within their walls.

The Board of Conference Examiners held its session this afternoon and the public reception will be held this evening at 8 o'clock.

BUSY PROGRAM

The conference this year will be a busy one. In addition to the routine business a successor to Dr. Thomas G. Hicks, district superintendent of the McKeesport district must be chosen. The tenure of office for this position is six years. So according to the law of the church his term has expired. Several years ago the time limit was removed from this office in the interest of efficiency but after a fair trial it was restored in the interest of democracy.

Another important issue to come before the conference is Evangelism. Plans will be proposed and a movement launched more ambitious and determined than anything heretofore attempted along this line.

BONUS DEBATE

The subject of a sustentation fund or bonus for underpaid preachers always elicits a warm debate and several men are already sharpening their swords for a tilt in this field.

The social aspects of Christianity have found an eloquent champion in Dr. Albert E. Day, pastor of Christ Church, who heads the Social Commission of the Conference. His report last year placed the Pittsburgh Conference in the front row as a champion of rights.

The Coke Missions of the Connellsville district will be represented by Adam Noray.

Dr. Sanford Corcoran's report of the work of the Church Union which assists struggling churches and does welfare work for the underprivileged will be received.

FOUNDATION WORK

The work of the Wesley Foundation at Oakland, Dr. Homer C. Renton, director, will be received. Twenty thousand students must be ministered to by the churches of this vicinity. Three thousand five hundred of them are Methodists. Education must be vitalized with religion.

The Methodist Hospital and Home for the Aged, Benj. B. Wolf, superintendent, lately enriched by a gift of half a million dollars, will call for careful and enthusiastic consideration. "The Church that lives for itself alone is a dying church." This Christlike ministry commends itself to the good will of this city and should leave a host of friends. Its finances are in fine shape and its debt is disappearing.

MASS MEETING

Education will not be overlooked and representatives from various colleges will be present to urge their claims. Temperance, prohibition and public morals will hold a mass meeting in their interests, and the conference will again issue its challenge and bid defiance to all its foes on these great issues.

Sometimes the somber shades of tragedy gather over us as the character of some minister is impugned. But this year I have heard of no such calamity to mar the happy hours.

Lunch and dinner will be served in the dining room of the church for the preachers every day, and for a few stray photographers who might want to come up to take their pictures.

North Side Mission Elects Officers

Sunday school officers of the Central Avenue Mission, North Side, have been chosen as follows: Superintendent, Samuel Dukes; first assistant, John Smith; second assistant, Walter Moorehead; treasurer, Orin Thomas; secretary, Ivil Smith; pianist, Mrs. Mabel Gaches; superintendent primary department, Ruth Cadugan; assistant, Lavera Gabosch; cradle roll superintendent, Mrs. Orin Thomas.

Safety Lane Viewed By Commerce Men

Chamber of Commerce officials yesterday made an inspection of "Safety Lane," Sherman avenue, North Side, where all this week, with equipment installed by the Automobile Club of Pittsburgh and the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers Association, there is to be free testing of motor car parts upon which safe operation depends.

Bowling Alley Tax Held Up by Council

Council is delaying action on the ordinance taxing bowling alleys $2.50 per month per alley.

The ordinance was returned to committee for a hearing on motion of Robert Garland after a complaint had been received from J. A. West, who declared the bowling business has been injured by miniature golf courses. The same ordinance taxes golf courses, indoor and outdoor, $1.66 per hole.

DECISION BARS 'STRAW MEN'

An opinion was handed down by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania yesterday which according to a dissenting opinion of Chief Justice Robert von Moschzisker in effect will greatly impede if not abolish the use in real estate transactions of straw men, a most serviceable institution long recognized in our law.

The majority opinion written by Justice Sylvester B Sadler reversed the Philadelphia courts which entered judgment in favor of the estate of Jules E Mastbrum and the Albert M Greenfield Company defendants in an action by representatives of the Ottman estate for rent and taxes on property leased to Realty Associates Inc. The lease was assigned to Samuel Gross, admitted straw man, who deposited it with the Greenfield company acting for the company in charge of the property.

The Supreme Court opinion sending the case back to the lower courts to be proceeded with opens the Greenfield company to liability.

Chief Justice von Moschzisker in his dissenting opinion joined in by Justice John W Kephart stated he could not agree that the lower court erred or that undisclosed principals may be held equally liable with the straw man. The Mastbaum estate and the Greenfield company, alleged they were undisclosed principals.

Pianos To Loan FREE

Frankly, we have too many pianos now in stock. Of course, we would like to sell them. Some new, some used instruments. Every piano in the sale will be sacrificed at a price almost unbelieveable. The slashing reductions on Grands, Players and Uprights should cause many to be sold immediately. All pianos not sold outright will be placed in the homes of families interested in owning a piano in the immediate future, particularly homes where there are children. You must call at the store to file your request.

Positively No Charge Of Any Kind

We, of course, reserve the right to select the homes in which the pianos are to be placed and they may be used indefinitely until we need them.

3 MASKED MEN ROB PAIR

READING, Pa., Sept. 30.—(AP)—City and state police are probing the third holdup and attack case within the last month in which a young man and his girl companion were robbed and beaten.

Three armed men, wearing white handkerchiefs over their faces, robbed Jacob Keim, 30, of $40, a watch, two diamond rings, took two rings from his companion and then tied both, according to the police.

Keim and his companion were seated last night in an automobile parked near Leiszs Bridge when they were accosted by the three bandits. After they had been stripped of their money and jewelry, Keim was forced to remove his shoes and stockings. His hands were tied, a handkerchief stuffed into his mouth and then tape stripped across his face to hold the handkerchief in his mouth. The girl also was tied up, but the bandits did not gag her.

After the robbery two of the bandits drove away in their own car, but one of them took Keim's automobile. It was found hours later abandoned in this city.

MILTON CROSS AND SACRED SONGS AMONG RADIO SHOW HIGHLIGHTS

Stolen Hymns.
Paderewski.
Those Crooners
Thornton Fisher

By LOUIS REID

Louis Reid

The melody men of course have not neglected the hymnmakers. Only a little research would be necessary to find that many of the best dance tunes of today have their origin in old German hymns.

Armchairs Wait For Paderewski

Considering their one time popularity mammy songs are given but rare representation on the air. Good old mammy songs. Did more to put Massa Jolson where he is today than anything save "Sonny Boy." When the history of the talkies is penned one of the thickest chapters should be reserved for "Sonny Boy." Jolson doesn't come to the microphones often. In fact three appearances and no more constitute his radio record, twice from the Hollywood gold fields and once—last Sunday night—from the hospitable rafters of Maj. Bowes' Capitol Theater.

There is more to Jolson than a clever showman. He paints a song vividly, though not to the point I would rank Kahlil Gibran, Rudy Vallee, Sophie Tucker and Irving Richman. These five have done more to delineate or what songs the lightning of popular taste is going to strike than all others in the land. Of the quintet Rudy Vallee is still the foremost of all lightning conductors. When people are attuned to hear a concert with the charm of deep night Vallee is not seen. He retirement of the old Main Street plead. He found a song in which the world could join, not merely once but the third, fifth, seventh encountered as time and radio ran on an anti-prohibition tide.

No Escape From Radio Crooners

The demand for crooning is still greater than the supply. Concert singers are abandoning their dreams of bowing from the stage of Carnegie to take up a moon-struck microphone. Athletes are rejecting the offers of Wall street to air the sugared songs of Broadway. Amazing phenomena, the rise of the crooners. There is no escape from them. Though you enlist in a North Pole or Amazon jungle expedition they will hunt you down. There is no escape from them short of poison. Jenkins prepare the hemlock.

Comes a letter from Thornton Fisher, a veteran of the radio army.

"Your comment that 'nearly seven years have passed since Billy Jones and Ernest Hare began trapping wisecracks under the billing of the Happiness Boys' struck a responsive chord in me and revived memories of the covered wagon era of broadcasting.

"Wendell Hall, the Happiness Boys and I were among the very first to broadcast commercially and to cast our lot with what has become one of the greatest institutions in the world. I preceded Jones and Hare only by a few weeks at station WEAF, giving a daily sport talk five evenings a week for a year. It was the first sport feature on the air and frequently I introduced sports celebrities, among them Jim Corbett and Gene Tunney, long before Gene was regarded seriously as a contender for the title. One night I sat under an African moon and listened to the only radio in the city of Fez, Morocco. Outside a camel caravan moved slowly on its way and nearby some native musicians interfered with a Spanish dance coming across the Mediterranean. What a boon radio was—and is."

Old Veterans' Night Requested

Fisher inquires where are the stars of yesteryear, those folks who pioneered with voice and instrument and blazed the trail for the gold rush? He suggests a Veterans' Night on the radio.

JUST TRAVELIN' AROUND

John O. Olson, vice president of OMC Supply Company, distributors of Bosch Radio, listens to his motor car radio. The set is installed under the dashboard. The trunk houses a double amplifying system.

WELCOME TO PITTSBURGH

MILTON J. CROSS JAMES A. SIMPSON

Milton J. Cross, NBC announcer, and James A. Simpson, director of the Pittsburgh Radio Show, as they posed in offices of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph today upon Cross' arrival in the city.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

Darrell V. Martin

One of the finest men we've met in radio certainly conservative and modest for his achievements. There is not a drop of conceit in his makeup.

Started with WJZ in 1921 and has resigned executive positions with NBC to retain his present job of announcing.

QUESTION A DAY

Answer: The call is WSXT. It is an experimental call of the new KDKA plant at Saxonburg. Synchronization tests are being conducted by WSXT and WEAF on 660 kilocycles or 454.4 meters.

The listeners' vote in the Pittsburgh Radio Poll will be published as soon as auditors complete the final count, probably Sunday.

SHOW NOTES

The real showmanship in radio is a thing. Two conductors, no matter, are being used. If one goes ahead and the other lags, happens the latter will signal to the stage.

Five microphones graced the stage last night. Each was a different style. It looked like a convention.

Anyone who'd think of the musical variation that brings a complete line of radio sets to your home is the huckster who sells dog remedies to the aged. Now it's Ann Leaf, today, madame? A good start.

Someone tacked a picture of Will Rogers in the corridor and labeled it "Here Comes the Sun. That'll make Al Jolson jealous.

William A. Farren and Stephen Levshen have the pleasure of hobnobbing with Milton Cross backstage tonight. Milton will visit the Sun-Telegraph booths.

We welcome back to radioland the pleasant, hardworking Will Rhodes, who will sing for Sacred Songs tonight after almost a year's absence from the microphone due to illness.

Jack and Jean, the original Bluebirds of KQV, have returned from their honeymoon and are back to the air tradition morning at 10:15.

"Bugs" Baer, newspaper humorist, is starred in the Radio Follies to be heard over WJAS Friday night.

Three Pittsburgh stations are to broadcast the world series—KDKA, WCAE, WJAS. The first game at Philadelphia goes on the air tomorrow at 1 p. m.

When you tune one program in

—do you tune the others out?

HOW selective is your radio? Does every broadcast come in clearly—without interference from stations on adjacent channels? When you tune in a program you want, does any other station intrude and cause distortion? Can you separate the stations from end to end of the dial without overlapping?

Before you buy your new radio, check the Grebe for selectivity and compare. Get a 7 check test card from your nearest Grebe dealer—it will show you how to rate each set for tone, control, sensitivity, decorative quality, construction and value, too.

THRONGS JAM RADIO SHOW

seemed to find the truth of his extolling statement to Pittsburgh's pioneering genius in the television apparatus which is the first to be exhibited on any radio show floor outside of New York.

If we're talking of things radically new, the television set-up creates the most excitement. But it really is only a forerunner of what we may expect when this part of radio broadcasting is perfected. Television today is embryonic and the Mayor and others discovered this last night. Still pictures are broadcast on the television every day from 3 until 4 o'clock on KDKA wavelength of 62 meters.

Television we believe is three years distant at least.

Every day in every way radio sets are becoming smaller and better, if we may use Coue's slogan to tell what's happening in the manufacturing field. The radio world, in other words, is the latest to succumb to the miniature fad which has brought us backyard golf courses, hole-in-the wall restaurants and what not. Now we have the mantel-piece radio and the radio for armchair comfort.

No more bulky cabinets like the upright piano of yesterday but neat compact bits of beautiful furniture with all the latest improvements embodied therein.

Conspicuous on the show floor last night was G. W. Johnny, Johnstone press representative of the National Broadcasting Company. By-the-by, now is the most gaily and a personal crony of congressmen of any outside of Merlin H. Aylesworth, president of NBC. Johnny was highly impressed with the show. He congratulated Mr. Simpson and Pittsburgh dealers on the show. Tonight dealers for their initiative and courage in giving the public more than anticipated. After his broadcasting chores, which collected Cross will be in the Sun-Telegraph booths. Mr. Johnstone might admit that stardom is the

AND CAMELS are easy to smoke. Here's smoke with joy in it—a light-hearted cigarette—merry and mild. Don't confuse Camel's mellow mildness with mere flatness or lack of flavor. Every bit of delicate aroma in Camel's naturally mild, sun-mellowed tobaccos is preserved by scientific care in manufacture—kept in Camels for you to enjoy. And you can smoke them all day with never a hint of throat discomfort.

Mild—not flat. Modern smokers are awake to that difference. They're swinging to Camels, and the mild fragrance of a cigarette made to be enjoyed.

CHAPTER II

There was a lull in the conversation as the man spoke again.

"Don't speak to anyone about this. Tito. Leave everything to me." Something further was said but Dale could not hear it. A moment later a young girl emerged from the wagon. She went off in the direction opposite to Dale. She was very young, probably under twenty, with a beautiful figure and a mass of shining, blond hair which formed little ringlets all about her head.

Dale was puzzled as she went along the path beside the wagon train until near the far end she entered one of them. Dale was about to knock at the door of No. 2 when he saw a man come quickly from the other side of the wagon and follow the girl called "Tito" into the wagon. The action was so furtive, so evidently planned that Dale was struck by it.

Already the mystifying atmosphere of the place had gotten under Dale's skin. He rapped loudly at the door of No. 2. The voice he had previously heard bade him enter. The interior of the wagon was furnished like a small room and appeared extremely comfortable.

Dale gave only a cursory glance to these details as a man at the far end had risen and was coming toward the rear of the wagon. He was tall and broad of shoulder and coatless.

"Mr. Swarney?" asked Dale.

"That's right. And you're—?"

"Robin Dale. I received a letter from you."

"Oh! Come in and sit down, Mr. Dale. Glad you came down."

Much of the preliminary conversation was unimportant. Dale asked few questions, he merely listened, waiting for the talk to get around to Beller's death. Finally:

"Queer things been goin' on around here, Dale—didn't pay much attention until Beller's death. There's a fantastic mind at work. Know how Beller died?"

"No, not exactly. Accident, wasn't it?"

"Yes, that was it. But a strange accident, very strange, an' not what it looked like on the surface. Found him lyin' in Emily's stall—Emily's an elephant, an ornery brute, too—Beller was lyin' there trampled under her huge feet, every bone in his body broken."

"The elephant killed him?" Dale asked to make sure of that point.

"That's what it was meant to look like—but that wasn't what happened. Swarney paused for a moment. "Now! Someone got Beller and made Emily finish the job so it looked like an accident.

"Y'see, we'd been havin' trouble with Emily for some time.

"How did you know it wasn't an accident, Mr. Swarney?"

It seemed a simple question but it silenced Swarney for a long moment. He rose and went to a little cabinet in the rear. Opening a drawer he took out an object about a foot in length. Dale saw that it was a blackjack that was pliable in the center and sagged under the heavy weight in the bulging end. Beads-lared thongs were attached to the handle of the weapon.

"I found this outside the tent behind Emily's stall." He handed the blackjack to Dale. "You can still see the stains on it. Blood! No one else noticed but I saw that Beller's head had been bashed in with that thing. No use callin' in the hick police we was in Blevin, Virginia—what could've been proved?" We would just get our show held up.

"What about this blackjack—couldn't you find out who owned it?"

"It's mine!"

For a while there was nothing further said. Swarney grinned and took the blackjack and deposited it in the cabinet again. He lit a cigaret.

"That was another reason I didn't call in the police. Whoever did it was tryin' to point it my way."

"Anyone have reason for wanting Beller dead?" asked Dale.

"That's hard to say, most anybody and yet nobody. He wasn't what you'd call well liked. Him an' me was havin' words of late, guess that's why the thing was pointed to me."

"I don't suppose you mind telling me what your trouble was. If I can be of any help to you it's best I know everything."

"Sure thing. No use hidin' anything. Our argument was about the business, he wanted me to sell out. We been doin' pretty good for a long spell an' he wanted it all. Now, about the rest o' the troupe, I won't go settin' your mind about any of them, you'll meet 'em all an' study them yourself. It's okay for you to talk to anyone you want an' pick up things yourself. I'll just introduce you as a newspaper man, no use tippin' them off to what you're really here for."

"Yes, it's better that way. Now, has anything else happened since Beller's accident?"

"Well, nothing you could lay a finger on, but there's something creepy in the air. It ain't easy to explain—it's like you feel when you watch the snakes crawlin' around on their bellies, only you can't see what's hanging over you. The whole troupe feels it—waitin' t' see who's goin' to get it next!"

Dale waited for Swarney to speak of the girl, Tito, but he made no mention of her. He wondered why. What was being hidden from him? Was Swarney protecting the girl? There was, obviously enough, something going on. At lunch that day Dale saw and heard many other things.

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

We have been investigating the roller-skating situation, a magnifying glass in one hand, a bottle of pop in the other. We find that roller skating hasn't changed much; people still put the skates on their shoes and whirl incessantly around and around. Every now and then somebody does a figure eight but no roller skater we saw had the nerve to try a figure 362. Why is this? We don't know. We know that John Hernon, of Motor Square Garden, wants to be known as the father of modern roller skating, just as Councilman Garland does not want to be known as the father of daylight savings. Mr. Herndon speaking: "Good, respectable people roller skate these days, not like when . . ."

A reporter's impressions of people who come to town:

Vice President Curtis—Good natured.

Earl Carroll—A poser.

Peggy Joyce—A warm admirer of Peggy Joyce.

Lois Moran—Just a child.

Senator Reed—Terse.

Texas Guinan—An incessant monologist.

Secretary Davis—Affable.

Gifford Pinchot—He suggests a Southern Co'nel.

Baseball prediction: In New York recently Paul Waner dropped into Baseball Writer Charley Doyle's hotel room, saw an idle typewriter and pecked out these words: "I believe the ball club will show them something next year. One of the reasons is that the boys like Ens and will work for him."

Baseball item: Heinie Mueller, the ex-Pirate, now has 47 trucks and a brick-hauling business in St. Louis. On Sundays he plays semi-pro ball. He is the Pirate who recovered from a broken neck. He is also the Pirate who, as a rookie, smacked a homer off Alexander in a pinch in Chicago only to discover, next day, that the papers said one Claude Rohwer, another rookie, was the hero. On that same next day the gatekeeper wouldn't let him in the ball park because he didn't know him.

COMPLETE JOB IN 50 DAYS, SAYS LANG

Nine Awards Made by City On Projects for Early Completion; Pave Streets

The widening of Grant street will be completed within 50 days, according to a contract let today by Public Works Director Edward G. Lang to the A. F. Jordano Company. The price is $18,147.

All the physical work on the project has been completed, with the exception of that stretch extending from Second avenue to Water street. All other details, including the payment of damages, was cleared up previously.

The Grant street project was included in nine contracts let today. One other contract went to the Jordano Company, the repaving of Muriel street, for $13,993.

The grading and paving of Edgerton avenue, from Selkirk way to Homewood avenue, for $13,625. Breker street, from Dickson to Reserve streets, $12,527, and the repaving of Baldwin road from Steen street to Crafton road, $17,760, went to the M. O'Herron Company.

Other contracts awarded were: Control apparatus, Brilliant pump station, $4,345; Belvidere street sewer, $2,760, and Frick Woods roadway improvemen., $7,366.

PAROLE GIVEN CONSTABLE

Constable George Hilper, of Brentwood, found guilty of aggravated assault and battery in an alleged shakedown of a miniature golf course proprietor, today was paroled for one year on condition that he resign as constable within 48 hours, by Judge W. H. McNaugher, in Criminal Court.

Carmine Arnoni and his wife, Adolina Arnoni, 3903 Brownsville road, Brentwood, were acquitted of assault and battery charges preferred by the constable.

Arnoni testified that while he was constructing the golf course next door to his residence Hilper demanded that he be given a percentage of the earnings. Arnoni said he told the constable the golf course was a regular business venture and refused to share the profits, whereupon he said the constable grasped him by a sore hand and twisted it. Mrs. Arnoni, it was testified, struck the officer, who, it was charged, turned and struck her.

Man Cut, 8 Fined In 'Jungles' Raid

Two Negroes, Joseph Washington and Haywod Penemn were fined $50 or 90 days in the workhouse, and six others were fined $25 by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Morals Court today, after Charles Williams, also a Negro, told West End police that he had been stabbed and robbed by Washington in the "Jungles," a Negro rendezvous along Banksville road.

Declaring the "Jungles" to be a menace, Magistrate Jones ordered its cleanup, and the arrests followed.

Nearest Relatives Get $30,000 Estate

The will of Mrs. Ida K. McCaslin, filed for probate today, left her estate, estimated at $30,000, to her husband for life. But as he died before she did, the property goes equally to her son, Samuel C. McCaslin, of 226 Shady avenue, and her grandson, Samuel C. Jr.

PUMPING PLANT REPAIR VOTED

An emergency appropriation of $30,000 for immediate repairs to the Brilliant Pumping Station has been passed by Council at the request of Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang.

Council's approval was voted after Mayor Charles H. Kline and Controller James P. Kerr had certified that "a serious emergency" exists in the boiler plant.

The acid condition of the water accentuated during the drought, is blamed for the condition there. A new electrically driven plant is in process of construction.

WOMAN SEEKS TO END LIFE BY POISON

Suicide Note Found in Room Hints of Lost Romance; Hope Held Out for Life

Mrs. Irene Baturin, 25, a roomer in the Clark Apartments, 701 Ridge avenue, was taken to the Allegheny General Hospital early today after she made an attempt to commit suicide, according to a police report. Other roomers heard moaning in her room and found her unconscious on the floor.

On the dresser was found the following note:

"I did it myself. Please forgive me everybody. He is not to blame."

Police say they learned the woman came here from Detroit a year ago.

At the hospital she regained consciousness and told the police, they say, that she had swallowed poison. She said, officers reported, that if she recovered she would make another attempt to end her life as she did not care to live.

COUNCIL PLANS TAXI LICENSES

Council in committee today will consider a proposal to license taxicabs and motor coaches operated for hire.

The ordinance, sponsored by the Department of Public Safety, would tax motor vehicles operated for hire $20 a year. Motor coaches would be taxed $50. The licenses would be granted by the Department of Public Safety.

Assistant City Solicitor Thomas M. Benner informed Council that taxicabs in St. Louis pay from $10 to $25.50 depending upon the horse power, in Cincinnati $24 and in Los Angeles $30.

The ordinance introduced yesterday fixes a penalty of $100 fine or 30 days imprisonment for violation of the license provisions.

FACES CHARGE OF MAIL FRAUD

L. W. Driggs, of Johnstown, supreme president of the Progressive American Benefit Fund, accused of using the mails in a scheme to defraud in asking contributions of members of the organization to pay death benefits of alleged non-existent members, was arrested on a Federal warrant at Johnstown. He was released under $2,500 bond pending trial at the November term of the Federal district court.

Driggs was indicted last week by the Federal grand jury, then sitting at Erie. The indictment cited several instances of alleged mailing of circulars asking members for contributions of $1.15 to pay the beneficiaries of the alleged deceased members.

STEVENSON'S WILL FILED

The will of W. H. Stevenson, civic leader and merchant, who died last week, was filed for probate late yesterday. No estimate of the estate was given. After bequests of $1,000 each to the Protestant Home for Incurables, the Pittsburgh Free Dispensary and th Western Pennsylvania Historical society, the remainder of the estate is left to his widow, Mrs. Fannie L. Stevenson.

Real estate consists of the home, 141 Dithridge street, properties in Fourth avenue and in Stark, Florida, and interest in the George K. Stevenson holdings in First avenue and in Darragh street. The personal property consists of interest in the George K. Stevenson store, of which the deceased was president.

Seeking Trip

MARIAN CRANFORD

TRIP TO PARIS BRINGS THRILL

Paris or Bermuda just before the holidays in December! What a thrill!

It is Gloria Swanson, famous motion picture star, who is making it possible for some one girl of Pittsburgh or vicinity to go to Paris for a week in December. The Sun-Telegraph is offering five additional trips to Bermuda for girls who live in the reading area of this newspaper.

And what a trip that Paris tour will be! It will require nearly a month.

In a way the Bermuda trips will be just as attractive—all expenses will be paid, a full week on these interesting islands.

Among the many entries received today is that of Miss Marian Cranford from Johnstown.

Miss Swanson's new picture, "What A Widow!" on account of which she is awarding the Paris tour, is now drawing big audiences at Loew's Penn Theater.

Boys Fined in Slot Machine Slug Spree

Three Toledo youths who came to Pittsburgh intent on making a cleanup by feeding slot machine metal slugs in exchange for silver, today were fined $50 or 30 days each by Magistrate John J. Sweeney in South Side Police Station. The trio, William Louis Griswold, Walter Roblin and Dean Gaston were arrested Saturday with a large supply of slugs the size of nickels, dimes and quarters.

CROWDS JAM COMMISSION OFFICE

Council Starts Legislative Action Today to Create Work for Unemployed

Job seekers today swamped the Civil Service Commission's office. For 700 laboring jobs, which Mayor Charles H. Kline's work conference arranged for yesterday, there was a string of applicants which crowded the fifth floor corridor in the City-County Building.

When the offices opened today H. F. Hansberry, secretary, said the commission already had on file 2,200 applications and before night he expected this number to be greatly increased. Council today is expected to start legislative action to create the jobs.

BOND ISSUE APPROVED

The first move probably will be approval of a $150,000 councilmanic bond issue for the construction of a swimming pool at Lake Carnegie, Highland Park. The necessary ordinance was introduced yesterday by Councilman John S. Herron.

Legislation is now being prepared for two other councilmanic bond issues, one for $132,000 for the construction of the Nine-Mile Run sewer, and for $94,500 for other sewer projects. At present $138,000 in bond funds is available for sewer work.

The conference yesterday was the second on the proposal of Councilman Robert J. Alderdice to have the city do as much work as possible this winter to relieve unemployment instead of letting the jobs to contractors.

JOBS ARRANGED

Mayor Kline, acting as spokesman, stated that arrangements have been made to put 275 additional labors to work on 16 sewer projects within 10 days, 225 others within 30 days and 200 more a short time thereafter. The last 200 will be put to work on the Carnegie Lake project.

The men will work approximately three months on the projects now arranged and will receive $4.40 a day. No machines are to be used, the plan being to put as many men as possible to work at hand labor with picks and shovels.

Mayor Kline announced that preference will be given to laborers who have been laid off in the Bureau of Highways and Sewers. The work will be directed by the city's own organization. He explained:

"We do not need foremen and bosses. There's no use applying for such positions."

CITIZENS ONLY

Only citizens of Pittsburgh need apply, he said. Both the mayor and Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang have sent letters to contractors doing city work asking that only Pittsburgh citizens be employed as far as possible.

In addition to making arrangements for additional laborers, the conferees decided to keep six asphalt gangs of six men each, usually laid off at this season of the year, at work patching streets.

SEWER REPAIRS

The sewers at which the new men will be put to work are mostly repair jobs. They include the Wightman street relief sewer, the Spring Garden avenue trunk sewer, Breining street, Merwyn avenue, Frick Park storm sewer, McKinley Park basis along Saw Mill Run boulevard, Broad street from Evaline street to the Allegheny Cemetery, Gould avenue, a sewer between Smallman and Butler streets, the Pennsylvania Railroad sewer draining Bigelow boulevard, Hairgrove street, Brookline boulevard, the Twenty-fourth street outlet sewer, Potomac avenue storm sewer, Cassina way and Parkwood road.

Prisoner Welcomes End Of 3 Years as Fugitive

Tired of being a fugitive, Charles D. Bentley, 23, of Asheville, N. C., yesterday at the Federal building here declared he was glad to be going back to Jacksonville, Fla., to answer a charge of violating the national motor vehicle theft act.

He told of being hunted since his escape three years ago from a chain gang of the state penitentiary at Atlanta, when he had served five weeks. The escape from the Georgia institution occurred about the same time he was indicted in Florida.

After hiding in a swamp for three days, listening to the baying of bloodhounds on his trail, he finally reached the home of a friend in Atlanta. Then he went to Chicago and nine months ago came to Pittsburgh, finding employment in a restaurant as a pastry cook.

Special agents of the Department of Justice traced him to Pittsburgh and he was arrested Saturday night. Judge Nelson McVicar signed an order for his removal to Jacksonville.

Noises Drive Cathie to Verge of Breakdown

CHAPTER XXXII

The scrawled note was from Marguerite. It stated, with childishly formed capitals, and long, curling flourishes of the pencil on the lavender paper, that Mr. Farnsworth was not feeling well, and went right to bed, and Mrs. Farnsworth was to please not disturb him.

Cathie's cheeks began to burn. Mr. Farnsworth upstairs, ill while she was kissing Gordon, telling him she loved him . . . oh, why did she do it? Why did she? Better go to see how he was . . . but he said he didn't want to be disturbed.

At least he might have come in to say a word before going to bed without any dinner. Nobody had any dinner. Cheong didn't serve. . . . Lord, why not? Did they know? Did anyone peek in the door? Alfred? No, no, he wouldn't do it. He wouldn't do a small thing like that. . . . But he might have come in, and found them. . . . They wouldn't have heard him.

She began to cry again. Oh, she was so frightened, so miserable. This was what happened when you did wrong. But is it wrong to kiss someone you love? To rest your head against his shoulder and . . . be happy for just a little while before you say goodby? It would be wrong not to. You've got to think of the one you love, too. It isn't only your husband. . . .

Recollections

Thinks of First Meeting With Gordon

"Oh, if my head didn't ache so much I'd think better!" she wailed. "I don't know what's right. I told Gordon I was glad, and I am . . . Oh, I'm the most miserable girl in the world . . . no, I'm not, I've got Gordon—only I sent him away . . . I've got to get used to it. . . . But I can't. I can't!"

It helped to cry. She lay face downward on the bed, and sobbed stormily. While she lay there, trying to cool her hot cheek against the cool linen pillow, she thought of the first time she met Gordon, and how she had cried all alone in the shabby little room on Clara street. It seemed a long time ago . . . a lifetime. But it was just a year . . . a year full of trouble. And people envying her because she married money . . . calling her a lucky girl . . . She almost laughed! Goodness, if they only knew!

Studies Self

Looks the Same, but Thoughts Changed

Well, you can't cry all night! She'd take a bath, and then she'd feel better.

The warm water felt good. She added another handful of jasmine salts, and luxed in the fragrant heat. At least there was plenty of hot water in this house. There never was at home. It took 30 minutes for the heater to work, and then the water wasn't very hot.

That was one thing about having money . . . all the hot water and bath salts you want.

Long ago she and Ruth had dreamed about having things like this. They used to fake a sort of game of it, telling each other the things they were going to have . . . maids, and fur coats, and real lace on nighties.

There was real lace on the one Marguerite had laid out for her. It was made of deep ivory satin, and it had a negligee to match. "Pretty," Cathie thought dispassionately, slipping into it, sliding her slim feet into small turquoise mules. She caught a reflection of herself in a long mirror. A slim, golden-haired girl in ivory satin and ecru lace, and turquoise mules on her feet. It was a pleasing picture, and she stood looking at herself for a little while.

She sat down at the dressing table, and stared at herself in the large fan-shaped glass. Yes, she was pretty. Awfully pretty. Fair-skinned, golden-haired, exquisite. She opened a silver box of cream. How nice it smelled! Like a breath from a garden. Maybe it was this.

Mellon Asked to Hasten Postoffice Contracts

Secretary of the Treasury A. W. Mellon was asked to take immediate steps to have contracts let for the construction of a new Federal building in Pittsburgh, in a resolution adopted by Council yesterday.

The resolution was presented by Robert J. Alderdice. Immediate work on the building was asked to aid in relieving the unemployment problem here.

The resolution requested further that Secretary Mellon, in awarding coptracts, employ citizens of Pittsburgh as far as possible.

Will Rogers Says:

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Sept. 30.

To the Editor of the Sun Telegraph:

Been reading a lot lately about that guy Hitler in Germany that's getting quite a following. He advocates forgetting everything connected with the peace treaty and starting all over new, and that is about what will happen in a few years. They will all get tired paying debts to each other and say "Our generation had nothing to do with it. If those oldtimers wanted to have war why didn't they pay for it," and, boy, that will discourage war. The minute nations find nobody is going to pay 'em anything after it's over anyway, they will say what's the use of going in? Fighting wars on credit can put you in the ash can, just like buying everything on credit has put us there.

Yours,

WILL.

'CHAINS' URGED TO CO-OPERATE

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—"Co-operation" was sounded as the keynote of the National Chain Store convention here today in a general invitation to chain store executives by Albert H. Morrill, president of the association and head of the Kroger Grocery and Baking company.

He said:

"The chain store industry is going through a period of unwarranted attacks and necessary internal improvement. Never in the past, and probably never in the future, will the call for co-operation, solidarity, exchange of ideas, the establishment of high standards of business ethics and efficient merchandising, among the chains, be as urgent as it is today."

The convention opened here yesterday, and will continue through tomorrow.

Today's luncheon speaker is Congressman James M. Beck, of Pennsylvania.

A hearing that is expected to have considerable bearing on Sunday sports in the Pittsburgh district will be held Friday in Common Pleas Court. An appeal has been taken from the decision of a magistrate who fined a manager of a baseball team for staging a Sunday baseball game.

Hugh Pascarello, manager of the Lincoln Civic baseball team, took an appeal from the $2 fine imposed upon him in East End Police Court September 1. Sponsors of the team have announced that they are determined to test the legality of the blue laws as regards Sunday sports, and that unless the appeal is acted upon favorably the fight will be taken to a higher court.

Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's question: What would you do if you were a millionaire for a day?

WILLIAM CHRISTMAN, North Side, student, Allegheny Vocational School. If I were a millionaire for a day, I'd rent a big club house and invite all my friends. I'd provide transportation and give them everything money could buy.

Mr. Christman

HENRY KAUFFMAN, North Side messenger boy. I'd take an aeroplane ride to Hollywood, take some of my friends with me. We'd go to see some movie stars. On our return I'd stage a big party.

Mr. Kauffman

WILBERT EVANS, North Side, clerk. I'd give to charity, of course. I'd take some of my friends to the best show in town, after which I would serve a banquet. The thing I would be most interested in would be giving money to the poor.

Mr. Evans

HORACE STEIN, North Side, laborer. I'd buy clothes and give them to the poor children; I'd have free food stands stationed on every corner. I'd hire an aeroplane and pilot and go for a long ride.

Mr. Stein

MISS MARY LA SCOLA, North Side, resident. I'd pay all my debts the first thing; then I'd arrange an aeroplane party to San Francisco, if possible, where I would have dinner and theater reservations made in advance. Our return trip would complete the day.

Miss La Scola

MISS HELEN EVANS, North Side clerk. If I were a millionaire for a day, I'd hire a yacht, invite all the people I know or would like to know. I'd give some money to ambitious youths who desire an education.

PAIR ACCUSED OF SELLING HOME BREW

Arrested at Barbecue Stand In Bethel Township; Rum 'Taken in 'Cutting' Plant

A man and his daughter faced hearings today as a result of a raid on Campbell's Barbecue, on the Curry road, Bethel Township last night.

Thomas F. Campbell, 49, alleged proprietor, and his daughter, Pauline, 18, were arrested after large quantities of home brew and mash were found in the place, agents said. They reported purchasing brew at the place several days ago.

A raid on an alleged whisky cutting plant at 2550 Center avenue yielded the federal raiders 144 quarts of whisky and large quantities of gin and alcohol, it was reported. In connection with the raid the agents said they arrested Katie Cortez, 20, who later was released on her own recognizance.

Thomas Miller, 32, of 934 Martin street, Portvue, was released on his own recognizance after a 20-gallon still was confiscated in his home, according to the raiders.

Charged with the manufacture of moonshine whisky, Casimir Carpenski, 65, of River avenue, Natrona, is to be given a hearing today before Justice of the Peace Francis Heck, of Natrona. A squad of police under Chief Paul Engleman and Constable William Metzer, of Natrona, raided the Carpenski home yesterday and said they found a still and liquor.

NEW ORCHESTRA AIDE CHOSEN

Antonio Modarelli, Pittsburgh composer who recently returned after eight years in Europe, has been named associate conductor of the Pittsburgh Symphony Society Orchestra. The selection was made by Eugene Goossens, conductor of the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra, brought here by the society to act as judge in a contest in which seven applicants participated, each conducting the orchestra in the presence of Goossens.

Mr. Modarelli

Modarelli will fill the place formerly held by Elias Breeskin, who left Pittsburgh at the close of the last season. In November, 1929, his ballet-pantomime, "Ocean Flight," depicting Lindbergh's memorable trans-Atlantic flight, was given its premiere performance in Augsburg, Germany.

B. & O. ACTION THREATENED

Drastic action is threatened against the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad by the Borough of Braddock for failure of the road to establish safety lights at crossings.

The railroad will be given until the council meeting, October 6, for a report in regard to the installation of lights which for the past year has been promised at the 12 crossings in that community, Borough Secretary Joseph R. Shermer said.

Council passed a resolution for the lights on July 25, 1929, and at the next meeting accepted the railroad officials' proposal for installing the lights, and to eliminate all of the crossing watchmen, with the exception of those at the Sixth, Eighth and Eleventh street crossings. The flash-lights were to be in service continuously with the exception of the three crossings which were to be guarded by the watchmen. Those lights will be off from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. So far the lights have not been installed.

Malone Picked to Lead Republican Campaign in County

POST OFFERED EX-COUNCIL PRESIDENT

Armstrong Urges Supporter Of Pinchot Be Chairman; Ziefel Returns to Job

James F. Malone, former president of Council, will be offered the chairmanship of the Allegheny County campaign to elect Republican nominees on the state and local tickets, according to Joseph G. Armstrong, Republican county chairman.

Malone was the first Republican leader, formerly allied with the organization, to declare for Gifford Pinchot for governor in the pre-primary campaign and since then has conferred frequently with Pinchot on general election plans.

Armstrong's intention to ask Malone to serve as chairman for the general election was indicated yesterday in discussing the opening of Republican headquarters in the Hotel Henry.

ZIEFEL RETURNS

Armstrong explained that William H. Ziefel, secretary of the county committee, had returned to duty after a brief illness and expected to remain at headquarters until after election day, November 4. Armstrong said:

"We'll have to get committees organized to raise campaign funds and carry out other campaign plans. I think there should be at headquarters some of the people who were for Pinchot in the primary, such as his local campaign chairman, Frank I. Gollmar. I would like to have Malone for campaign chairman."

Before the primary campaign began to take definite shape, Malone was mentioned frequently as the chairman to direct the county fight for the Republican state organization candidates, but was said to have refused the place.

WAS MARTIN ALLY

Malone and the late Judge Richard W. Martin opposed Mayor Kline for re-election last year, polling jointly about 100,000 votes. Since the judge's death, his friends have formed the Richard W. Martin Republican Organization for the announced purpose of fighting for the political ideals espoused by Martin. Malone is an honorary member of the Martin organization.

LOWER FARES TO BRENTWOOD OPPOSED

Motor Line Points to Its Heavy Traffic, Saving of Time to City Terminal

A proposed 15-cent bus line from Brentwood to downtown Pittsburgh was opposed today before Public Service Examiner S. G. Miller by attorneys for the Pittsburgh Railways Company.

Opposition was based upon the railways' declaration that there was no necessity for the proposed bus service and that it would be in competition to existing street car service.

REDUCED FARE

The Brentwood Motor Coach Company has made application for the line and proposes to operate from Brentwood over the Saw Mill Run boulevard through the Liberty tubes. Straight fare, according to its application, would be 20 cents and by purchasing five tokens at a time the fare would be 15 cents.

In refuting the railways' claim that there is no necessity for the bus line, D. L. Frick, president of the Brentwood company, gave a detailed report on bus traffic over his existing line for September 28. He said on that day his coaches carried 1,929 passengers. Of this number 220 transferred at the Brentwood loop to street cars and the balance were distributed from there to the bus terminal in Brownsville road.

REDUCE TIME

The present traveling time from Brentwood to the city, he said, is from 35 to 45 minutes by street car and by bus he declared, this time would be reduced 15 to 25 minutes.

The proposed downtown terminal is Smithfield and Diamond streets. Mr. Frick said his company proposed putting five buses in service at once.

BAIL CUT IN GUN ATTACK FOUGHT

Judge George V. Moore has refused to reduce the $10,000 bail of Vincenso Deletora, 38, of Wilmerding, held in jail for trial in Criminal Court on a charge of felonious assault and battery with intent to kill, preferred by former Constable John E. Williams of Wilmerding.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park objected when Attorney Frank J. Zappala made the motion for reduction of the bail. Park told the court he understood that on August 30 Williams had been fired upon from a passing automobile. There were several witnesses, he said, and Deletora was arrested, charged with the shooting.

Zappala argued that as Williams was not hit by the bullet the bail was excessive.

ETNA MAN KILLS SELF IN OFFICE

Grant E. Carson, 42, of 49 Village street, Etna, assistant treasurer of the H. K. Porter Company, locomotive builders, shot and killed himself in the offices of the company, Forty-ninth and Harrison streets, yesterday, according to police and coroner's reports.

C. L. McHenry, treasurer of the company and long-time friend of Carson, witnessed the tragedy, police say. Carson's accounts with the company are said to be straight but, according to McHenry, he had been worrying over personal financial matters.

The conveyance of a private undertaker pulled up at the plant to get the body, but the police refused to permit its removal until the arrival of the coroner. Chief Deputy James Davidson, from the coroner's office, went to the plant and spent nearly an hour examining the premises and the body, which later was taken to the morgue for a post-mortem examination.

LUCKY GIRL

that had made her skin so nice lately.

Circumstances
Money Has Caused A Difference

She looked at her face long and thoughtfully. It was really a nice face, aside from being pretty. To look at it you'd never know that it belonged to a woman who had just confessed her love for a man who wasn't her husband and kissed him again and again. . . . Funny to look just the same, pushed the cream away. It was a very little box, and it had cost $5. Five dollars of Alfred Farnsworth's money. . . . and feel so different! She. Everything she had, everything she was, was due to that money that she had just told Gordon she didn't care about. Well, she didn't. It had brought her nothing but misery. Even with the family. . . . They'd have managed without it somehow, and been happy. . . .

And still . . . and still . . . Cathie's tired mind groped with the facts. She wanted to be honest, at least with herself. Without Farnsworth's money, without the arresting clothes and the other charming things she had bought with it, would Gordon have noticed her? Oh, he didn't love her for any such reason. He'd love her now if she were dressed in sackcloth and had cinders in her hair. But would he have noticed her if she had been plain Cathie Paige? He didn't pay much attention to her when she wore Ruth's suit and didn't know about seven dollar powder, and five dollar cream, and there was no Marguerite to brush her hair into gold, and set it into gilded, shining waves.

She didn't hold it against him. People don't notice plain little poor girls, that's all . . . but the wife of a man like Alfred Farnsworth . . . yes . . . they notice rich men's wives, made lovely, surrounded by lovely things.

She put her head down on her arms, and the hot tears stung her already reddened eyes. She knew. If she hadn't married Alfred she'd never have had Gordon, and because she was married to Alfred she could never have him.

A Shot
Noises Prevent Her From Sleeping

The tears came faster. She tried to stop crying, and couldn't. Oh, Gordon, Gordon, why didn't you come sooner? Oh, why did you wait? Oh, what shall I do? What would Ma say . . . what would anyone say? What's the use . . . what's the use of anything . . . what's . . .

She jerked up sharply. Looked over her shoulder, frightened.

A shot. There was a shot in the house!

Her heart pounded against her side. Abject terror gripped her. She stood stock still, icy hands pressed against her hot face. There she was, getting frightened over nothing again! It showed what nerves would do . . . imagining things . . .

It sounded like a shot, though. Maybe the Chinese were having a tong war in the basement . . . Now what a crazy thought that was! Just as if Cheong would allow such a thing! She half smiled at her own fancy . . . Tong war, indeed! What it was was a tire blowing out in the street. . . .

She got up and went to the window, half expecting to see a struggling motorist outside. The street was deserted. Never mind, it was nothing, she'd go to bed.

In bed, she began to cry again. The house was sighing softly, creaking . . . queer noises, secret sounds . . . oh! what made it be that way? Why couldn't it be like other houses?

Cathie lay perfectly rigid, eyes shut, heart pounding sickeningly. She WOULDN'T give in . . . she'd go to sleep . . . lie still anyway . . . Nothing to be afraid of . . .

Minutes passed . . . hours perhaps . . . Cathie was icy cold, shaking from hand to foot. . . . The house was going to win. It was going to make her give up and cry out in the dark . . . creak . . . rustle . . . whisper . . . beat . . . beat . . . like the throb of a ghostly heart.

Oh, I can't stand it!" she cried aloud. "I can't! I can't!"

Scarcely knowing what she was doing or where she was going, she flung open her door and ran, still crying, down the hall to her husband's room.

The woman seeing the ghost from out her past, this blindingly beautiful woman with the gemmed hands that reached for her, and the blazing, seeking eyes clutched the bundle to her breast and staggered backward against the table.

"You've come for Bill," she whispered.

"Yes, Anna, yes," cried Raquel, a flute of purposeful design. "Where is he, Anna?"

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Rude Dance Escort

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At a dance recently, where we were strangers, the young man I go about with discovered an older couple from his office who were spending a vacation at the same place. He pardoned himself and left me standing alone and went over to these friends and stayed during two dances which were rather long ones too. Shouldn't he have taken me with him and introduced me to them also? No other couple was with us.

MARY

Yes. To leave you as long as this, to leave you in fact at all was inexcusable and extremely rude. There are few things more embarrassing than sitting while other people are dancing, waiting for a friend to finish talking with other friends. I hope that this friend will not be so thoughtless and so rude again.

Letter Salutations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

As I have been married just recently, I have received some gifts from three of my employees. I have known them for seven years and have always called them by their first names because we were always very friendly. In my acknowledgment of these gifts I wrote "Dear Frank," but A thinks this is not proper as long as I am married. If I should say "Mr. Man" and so forth they would think I had suddenly gone insane. Will you please tell me what is correct? READER

Indeed, you were right in using the same name by which you are accustomed to address these gentlemen. It would have been ridiculous as you say, suddenly to change to the formal name when you have for so many years used the informal name. I think they would have thought that you had gone insane.

Life's a Choice Between Glass Beads and Real Pearls, Says Fay King

LIKE CHILDREN, MANY YOUNG PERSONS ARE THRILLED BY GLITTER
BUT SOME ARE BLESSED WITH GOOD COMMON SENSE WHICH GUIDES THEM AWAY FROM PITFALLS
FAY KING

By FAY KING

If a little child had a choice between a dull pearl of great worth and a bright green glass bead, the child, doubtless, would choose the bead.

So it is with many young persons scarcely more wise to life's values.

Childlike, they incline toward the brighter glitter of worthless ways.

An unscrupulous person would over-praise the green bead and pretend to prefer it, thus influencing the child's choice so the pearl would fall into his hands.

Older children meet such persons also—who over-praise the shallow life and pretend to prefer it.

Mr. Train Volunteers to Warn Detective of Dangerous Roads

But I said that [illegible] at Mr. Trains propos[illegible] a [illegible] mountain road to warn Mr. Hasbrouck and all the [illegible] detective of his capture. That would mean [illegible] that dangerous road [illegible] ore giving up and the [illegible] coming down. I have to fight [illegible].

"I [illegible] ask [illegible] Mr. Train answered with a [illegible] smile. "I am [illegible] at [illegible] there [illegible] Hasbrouck [illegible] these [illegible] we are [illegible] sense in [illegible] The accidents are [illegible] statistics. If Hasbrouck were driving down [illegible] he would never [illegible] be permitted to drive a car [illegible] If Mr. Stuart should be a small [illegible] we'd [illegible] advise [illegible] danger. So I think I'd better go."

Before I could answer him his wife bustled into the room.

"I declare," she said. "I almost forgot. Mrs. Hasbrouck wanted you to call her up as soon as you got here."

Mr. Train [illegible] his watch out and made a mental calculation.

"I'll have time to wait until after the telephone," he said. "Better not say anything to Mrs. Hasbrouck about the mountain road."

"Oh, of course not," I assured him. "Where is the telephone?"

"Right in the next room. 'No' as I started for the door. "Wait here. I'll get the number for you."

As he followed his wife out of the room, Mary nodded, her fingers at me tauntingly, her eyes brimming with mischief.

"You've met your match for once, Auntie Madge," she said in a low voice. "There's a girl who's going to run things his own way, without any assistance from New York feminists. You may be the new hourglass shape at the hotel and the farmhouse, but he's back up here you're the styles of yesteryear."

"Hush!" Lillian whispered. "They'll hear you," and Mary subsided.

I could hear Mr. Train repeating the Hasbrouck telephone number, and in a subsequently short time he summoned me to the telephone.

"Keep her on the wire until after you've told me what she says," he directed, and I took over the receiver with amused meekness.

"Mrs. Graham?" Mrs. Hasbrouck's voice came crisply over the wire. "Pa wanted me to tell you that they started about an hour after you did. The man made such a row, threatening to sue Miller, and get the state cops after him, and I don't know what not, that Pa thought he'd better get Miller down. So he gave Miller a signal they'd agreed on for an emergency, of course Miller'd been awake all the time through their calling and hammering, and Miller let them in. He delayed them all he could, and Pa says one of the tires is fixed so it will go pretty soon, and they'll have to change it. But Pa says the man doesn't suspect him at all, and was glad to take him along. Now don't you stir from Trains till Pa's sure the man has gone over one route or the other. He'll telephone you the minute he knows and then you'll be ready to go. And good luck to you."

"Thank you so much," I told her fervently. "But wait a moment, please." I put my hand over the receiver and repeated what she had told me to Mr. Train as he had asked. When I had finished he took the receiver from me.

"Train speaking," he said crisply. "Don't worry. I'll take care of these folks and give you a ring when everything's all right. And don't expect Egbert home till this afternoon. We'll keep him here to dinner. Now I'm going to hang up before you have time to think up any objections. Good-bye."

He laughed softly as he put the receiver back upon the hook.

"That will hold her for awhile," he said. "No use worrying her about the road. But I'll start up there right away. Don't worry. I'll hug the hillside all the way up and when I get just below the cross road where the two roads around the Ashokan Dam meet I'll stop and fiddle with the engine of the car till Egbert and this fellow come along. I'll signal them to stop and of course Hasbrouck will make the other chap pull in. Then I'll be surprised to see Hasbrouck, pretending that I'm stopped for first passers by, and I'll ask Hasbrouck to send a message back up to me something of course which he can clear on later. Then I'll warn them about the road with emphasis, and tell them what a hairraising ride they had, and Hasbrouck will do the rest. What [illegible] of that scheme."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, October 1

According to the planetary configurations the indications are for the stress of social activities rather than business, although all those affairs relating to such interests may successfully engage the attentions. Social correspondence or affairs of friendship with profound personal leanings in this direction may be absorbing to the setting aside of more commonplace concerns. There may be unusual indulgence in impulses.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year in which domestic, social, romantic or artistic matters may claim their most active attention, possibly to the detriment of strictly business concerns having to do with artistic, domestic, social or feminine affairs or amusements may thrive.

A child born on this day may be particularly gracious, popular and sympathetic with "talents leaning" toward art, music, letters or the finer things of life.

Furnishing Your Home

Pewter Fashions

A feudal war in Prince-of-Wales-land made pewter a fashion 400 years ago. At that time the kings confiscated all silver, so the people invented and substituted pewter, which looked much like silver.

Likewise a war is partly responsible for the revived fashion of pewter today. A servant war.

Good servants are scarce, expensive and temperamental these days. And pewter though it has a silverlike finish, stays bright and does not have to be polished.

Pewter is essentially a peasant product. It is still used today in the peasant homes of Europe. Early American settlers in their simple, peasant-like homes used it because they couldn't afford silver.

The great modern interest in American Colonial furniture has helped make pewter a modern fabric fashion, too.

People are buying and using old pewter and modern pewter. Modern pewter has a brighter finish than the old, more the look of silver. Some of the loveliest comes from Sweden and Denmark.

Pewter is being used in almost every room in the house with the possible exception of the bathroom. Tea, coffee and chocolate service rate high in pewter fashion checkups.

So do water pitchers of Colonial inspiration, syrup jugs and sugar and cream sets. And candlesticks, tall, slender ones and low squatty ones, and the old-fashioned candlesticks with the handle.

Salt and pepper shakers are favorite items in pewter, because salt does not stain pewter like it does silver.

Console sets of pewter are replacing many of the silver ones. Flower bowls and vases flourish on hundreds of tables. Cigaret boxes and ash trays are almost too numerous to count.

Many an old Dutch or English pewter snuff box now holds American tobacco. And even the baby's old pewter porringer is now being used for ashes instead of oatmeal.

Old pewter mugs and plates make effective decorations in Colonial or English type rooms, and they are not so expensive either.

Household Hints

There is something irritating about that duplicate list we must make when sending clothes to the laundry. This can be avoided if you will just put a piece of carbon paper between your two sheets of paper and keep the carbon copy for yourself, sending the original to the laundry.

So many housewives think they are saving themselves work by placing a newspaper over the tray underneath the burners of the gas stove, to catch any drippings from the cooking. It is not a good habit for not only does the paper take up the cooking odors, but sometimes the housewife is apt to have a fire when some hot drippings should be spilled on the paper. It is far less trouble to wash off the tray each day.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Do You Believe in 'Platonic Love'? Or Isn't There Such a Thing?

Can a man and a woman adore each other and still remain just friends?

And suppose one of them is married to a mate he no longer loves and has heavy family responsibilities? Can they remain true to that vow and loyal to that responsibility and still enjoy the ecstasy of perfectly proper companionship?

In short—can they have their cake and eat it too?

Justine thinks they can. Justine is the woman in the case. Hal's the man. And you might as well know it now. I'm the Doubting Thomas.

"Dear Sally Martin:

"Please give me some advice. I need your help.

"My life, from the time of my very young childhood was filled with great physical pain and great disappointments regarding things that meant all of life to me.

"When I was almost 18 I met a man much older than I with a temperament much like my own and I loved him and he loved me. It was a love that was everything beautiful and pure. We struggled against it for he was married to a good wife. We saw each other rarely, and upon those occasions our love was scarcely expressed at all, and if it was, it was in a quiet, sacred way that ennobled my life. It was to me a sad joy that was divine.

"Five years and more have passed, and I now find myself accomplishing worthwhile things in my profession, and believe myself to be on the way to realizing great art in it. I see Hal less and less, but in spite of separation, difference of race, creed and surroundings, I love him no less, but even more than at the beginning. In spite of all efforts to uproot it, this love has been like a seed that took deep root in the soil of my life and blossomed and flowered all the way, even with weeds trying to choke it from every side.

"I know that he loves me and I also know that this love has never had any culmination or even much sharing and probably never will have. Still I love and need his companionship. I want an occasional hour, just one in a long while, when we can sit and look at the stars or I can sing to him or tell him of the many problems and incidents that a woman longs to tell.

"I feel that we could have this joyous companionship and keep it as clean and pure as he and I have remained these five years. When I am away, out of the city, I want to write to him of the things nearest my heart, and I want him to write to me like that. Am I wrong? Is it wrong and impossible for us to have this strange love as it is?

"I want it to be courageous and beautiful, and my heart tells me I can always keep it the ideal it should be.

"Should he not see this as I see it? And if he is a little hesitant about coming to me, isn't it too cautious, too unworthy of us? I want a little companionship. A little thought in an abiding affection that harms no one and I am afraid that he hesitates to come to me, even though he loves me. Am I wrong to wish this?

"I want a beautiful, courageous golden flame, not caution. Not fear. But am I mistaken? Is he being not cautious, but only wise if he hesitates?

"JUSTINE JEROME.

You 'heart tells you," Justine. But what does your head tell you?

Yes, I know it feels beautiful and noble and thrilling and romantic, but how does it check up when you do a little cold, honest auditing? It's sweet to keep a dream in your life—but isn't the upkeep of this particular dream too costly?

Aren't you wasting the fine substance of life on an attachment that will leave you bankrupt and unfulfilled when the tale is told?

No, I'm not suggesting that you're going to do "something wrong" if you continue this companionship. But there are many things quite as bad, if not worse for life than physical transgression. It may be quite as vicious to deny life as to gratify it. And you are denying life when you give yourself over to a dream and refuse to seek the romance and adventure and beautiful service that might come if you'd open your heart to reality.

And as a matter of fact, I doubt very much if you love this man as much as you think you do. He came into your life when you were smarting under disappointment and pain. He was someone to lean on—both a support and an escape. You clutched at him with gratitude and relief. And you called that gratitude and relief "love." No harm in that. But you should have gone on. Instead, you're trying to clutch the impossible—trying to escape from reality. And so you're letting this "love" waste your life as surely as though you had lovated every rule of honor.

The man is wiser than you are. He is refusing to follow a will-o'-the-wisp. Take his advice. Turn from him as he is turning from you. Keep your beautiful memories, but don't try to live on them.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Was Typhoid Increase Due to Drought?

Last summer we went through an almost unprecedented period of hot weather and drought. It extended over the entire country. At such a time there is a reduction in the water supply, and a curtailing of foodstuffs. These evils are far reaching when it comes to the health of the people.

DR. COPELAND

According to a recent report from Surgeon General Cumming of the Public Health Service in Washington, typhoid fever was on the increase through the summer. During one week there were 930 reported cases as compared to 870 in the corresponding week of last year.

Every health expert urges extreme care that drinking water in rural sections, when it comes from sources the purity of which are in doubt, should always be boiled.

Reduced water supplies, contamination from milk supplies, raw vegetables and many other factors are carriers of infection from the dread germ of typhoid. It is possible flies and mosquitoes may carry these germs to food and drink.

Typhoid carriers, that is persons who had typhoid and who carry the germ in their bodies for years, are another source of infection. They are always a menace.

The symptoms of typhoid fever vary in different people. The period of incubation is from eight to 14 days. As a rule the onset is gradual. First there may be headache, then abdominal pain, constipation, fever, chills, eruption on the abdomen, and many other symptoms.

One of the first precautions to be taken when typhoid fever is suspected is to put the patient to bed. Cases which otherwise might have been slight have proved extremely severe because this precaution was not observed.

After years of study, the medical profession have found that medicine is not the most important thing in the treatment of a typhoid patient. Careful nursing, proper diet and the best of care will usually bring about complete recovery. As in the case of many diseases, vaccine treatment has been found successful in preventing typhoid fever.

The modern diet in the case of typhoid is contrasted strongly with that of only a few years ago. The starvation diet is a thing of the past. Milk, coddled or soft-boiled eggs, broths, jellies and other foods suggested by the doctor in charge are permissible.

There should be frequent baths and cool sponges, and frequent cleansing of the mouth.

Harpster's Successor. • May Rout Opener Jinx.
Wilson Needed by Cards. McCarthy to Yankees
Grimes Wise Choice. May Trade Conacher.

M'CURDY ONE OF PLAID'S MAIN HOPES

Harry McCurdy

For three years the talented Howard did all the punting and passing for Carnegie, directed the team on the field with a master's touch, and was one of the surest tacklers in an open field that the game has ever known.

McCurdy came up from the 1928 Plebe team with a splendid career in high school and Kiski behind him. He also could punt and pass, and was more rugged than Harpster. However, recalling the incomparable Harpster, the fans found no little fault with Harry in his early games. Things didn't go right for him. He was criticized for alleged errors in judgment, his tackling, passing and punting were none too good, and it looked like he might never make the grade.

BUT McCURDY DEVELOPED overnight and in New York last Thanksgiving Day he completely dominated the game as Harpster used to do, being the biggest single figure in the 20-to-0 victory over Chick Meehan's Violet machine. He continued his new-found stride on the Pacific Coast and was the only eastern player in all the three games on the coast last December who stuck through the whole game.

Harry is a Carnegie offensive main-spring this year, confident of his own ability to run the team, and in turn having the fullest confidence of his team-mates who never question his calling of plays. His all-around work in Buffalo last Saturday was brilliant. If the Plaid should have a brilliant season, McCurdy will be one of the reasons.

THE CATCHING POSITION was one in which the Cardinals did not measure up to the A's in the first place, as Mickey Cochrane admittedly is superior not only to any backstop on the St. Louis roster, but to any in either of the major leagues.

And the difference between the two clubs in strength behind the bat will be all the greater if Jimmy Wilson is unable to get into action. One of Wilson's legs was injured so severely in the Cards' series in New York almost three weeks ago that he has been on the shelf ever since, except for a few innings he caught against the Pirates last week for the purpose of trying himself out.

Jimmy Wilson

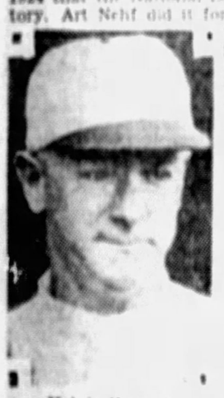
IF WILSON IS unable to don the mask and wristpad in the world series the loss of his activities will be a hard blow to Gabby Street's gang. Jimmy is rated the best catcher in the National League, unsurpassed at guessing out the enemy's signs, and besides is one of his club's most dependable hitters and a fast and smart baserunner. He will be missed in all departments on the field. The Cards will not be without good catching, as Gus Mancuso has come along fast and is a strong hitter, and there is also a chance that the A's may consent to let Street use Earl Smith in an emergency, though Earl did not join the team before September 1, as required by world series eligibility rules. Neither is to be compared with Wilson, however, particularly in the matter of speed.

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT BY Manager Street of the selection of Burleigh Grimes to pitch the first game of the diamond derby for the National League champions only confirmed what the majority of fans had surmised since the spitballer was used against the Pirates in the opening contest of the final series of the regular season.

It was clear then that Street was timing Grimes for the initial round of the title fight in spite of his 37 years. But Burleigh would have been the logical choice anyhow. He finished the National League campaign in a better stride than any other St. Louis pitcher, he has the experience and the fighting spirit required, and as much courage as any pitcher in the country.

IN EVERY WAY he shapes up as the best bet to start the oldest league off on the right foot if that achievement is to be possible for any St. Louis hurler. Besides, there are nine ball players in there when Burleigh is pitching, not merely eight players and a flinger. He can hit and he can field.

If Grimes captures the opener, it will be the first time since 1924 that the National League has started a world series with a victory. Art Nehf did it for the Giants against Washington that year. Lee Meadows lost for the Cards in 1925, Bill Sherdel for the Cards in 1926, Remy Kremer for the Bucs in 1927, Sherdel for the Redbirds in 1928, and Charley Root for the Cubs last year.



Heinie Wagner

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT THAT Heinie Wagner had stepped down as manager of the Boston Red Sox and that a new pilot would be found at the head of the club in 1931 did not come as a surprise. The passing out of Wagner is termed a "resignation," but that he was not to be retained had been generally understood for some time. What had been at first only a surmise was practically confirmed a few days ago when it developed that Joe McCarthy had promised Bobby Quinn not to sign with any other club before he had talked things over with the Red Sox owners. That "talk" isn't likely to amount to anything more than just that, however. All signs point to McCarthy's becoming manager of the New York Yankees, in which event Ty Cobb may become the Red Sox pilot.

LATEST AVERAGES OF the Pacific Coast League show that Earl Sheely, of San Francisco, former Pirate first baseman, is still the leading hitter of that circuit with an average of .414. Wes Schulmerich, Los Angeles outfielder, is second with .383, followed by Hank Severeid, veteran catcher of Hollywood, with .374.

Dave Barbee, of Hollywood, leads the home run clouters with 38 to his credit. Mickey Heath, a team mate, has 36. Fred Haney, of Los Angeles, tops the base stealers of the league with 48, 16 more than the second man in that department. Fritz Knothe, of Seattle.

THE SCHEDULE FOR the remainder of Gallant Fox's racing career has finally been shaped definitely by Owner William Woodward and Trainer Jim Fitzsimmons. The champion 3-year-old will start in two more races.

The first of these will be the Hawthorne Gold Cup in Chicago

Three Westminster Stars Injured

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Sept. 30.—Three members of the Westminster College football team who started against Edinboro State Teachers College Saturday have been lost to the team through injury, it became known today. None of the men will be available for use for at least two weeks, Trainer Jack Hulme announced.

FORMER CHAMP CRITICIZES U. S. G. A.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 (AP).—George Von Elm, long recognized as the American amateur golfer ranking second only to Bobby Jones, yesterday amplified his decision to withdraw from all future amateur competition by identifying himself as a business man golfer, neither amateur nor professional, who expects to take the profits from open prize money and yet maintain his own private business.

The only player who has beaten Jones in a 36-hole match in the last seven years of American amateur championship competition also signalized his farewell to simon-pure ranks by attacking the United States Golf Association, which at one time disbarred the blond star for alleged violation of the amateur rules.

COMMERCIAL PROJECT

Von Elm characterized the championship tournament as a "highly organized commercialized project," a show for which $50,000 is paid in but nothing contributed to the expenses of the players.

At Merion last week Von Elm was runner-up to Jones for medal honors and was eliminated by Maurice McCarthy, Jr., of New York, in a record-breaking match that went 10 extra holes. He beat Jones for the championship at Baltusrol in 1926, in the final round.

"I have retired from amateur golf," he said in a formal statement, "because competing in the American and British amateur and Walker cup international match isn't worth the $10,000 a year it costs me.

"For 10 years I've had Mr. Stuck in front of my name and that insignia of amateurism has required more than $50,000 of hard earned money.

"I propose hereafter to play golf in such open events as I choose and on such occasions gamble my skill against the prize money. I want it understood at the same time that I have a business of greater value to me than I could ever hope to equal as a golf professional.

RATES GOLF AS BUSINESS

"It isn't nice to treat the subject of my amateur status in cold terms of dollars. The United States Golf Association's amateur championship is a highly organized, commercial project. Fifty thousand dollars is paid in for the amateur show, while the 32 performers play their hearts out for honor and glory. Not a penny of that money is contributed by the U. S. G. A. to the expenses of the players. Tournament golf today is show business in a big way.

"The finger of suspicion points to many players of amateur golf today, but the show must go on and the U. S. G. A. is busy a

CHICAGO CLUBS SET FOR SERIES

CHICAGO, Sept. 30 (AP).—Chicago baseball fans have been deprived of World Series entertainment at home, but are warming up to the city series between the Cubs and White Sox, to the extent of lining up for an advance sale of nearly 40,000 for the first game tomorrow.

The first two games of the intramural championship series will be played at Comiskey Park, stronghold of the White Sox. If the 40,000 prediction is fulfilled, it will be one of the few occasions of late when so many fans visited the South Side Park.

Rogers Hornsby's Cubs were 7-to-5 favorites to retain the city title won in 1928, but interest was centered more on one game, the first in which it was indicated Pat Malone for the Cubs would oppose Ted Lyons, Sox ace, in a pitching battle.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE FLIGHT OF HAY—This phenomenon was observed by the haymakers of Denbigshire, England, on the afternoon of July 25, 1857. Due to the fact that the hay traveled in a contrary direction to the wind, it was at first mistaken for a flight of birds and caused much consternation in the town of Wrexham, five miles distant. My drawing was made from an old print in the Illustrated London News of August 1, 1857. THE CHIN WHISKERS OF THEODORE VOLZ—Theodore Volz won a whisker contest in Stuttgart in 1912 for the most original hirsute adornment. The judges took into consideration that there was a practical hint in his idea, which would be helpful in case of amnesia.

TOMORROW—THE KING OF APPLE EATERS.

Nick Altrock Speculates On Connie's 'Ehmke'

By NICK ALTROCK.
Famous Baseball Humorist.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—On the eve of the world series starting, there is absolutely no choice between the teams. I have had my figures added up and checked by a certified public accountant and a cafeteria cashier, and they both tell me they're positively right. So, with the opening pitchers practically warming up, the world series standing of the teams is as follows:

ATHLETICS	000
CARDINALS	000

Now what could be a tighter race than that?

Nick Altrock.

The big question is, who will be Connie's pitching selection. I usually call him Cornelius McGillicuddy, the elongated tactician of the Philadelphia aggregation, when I am writing on space. But this series I am getting paid by the article, so I can even call him Con.

Well, the best dope is that Con will shoot in Lefty Grove, but you never can tell. A year ago at the series, the experts had Connie's pitching staff all accounted for and then he reached down into the lining of a tall silk hat and pulled out Howard Ehmke. This maneuver caught all the experts flat-footed. They not only failed to recognize Ehmke, but they couldn't even spell him.

CATCHERS IN DANGER

So that is why it is hard to dope Connie's opening pitcher. He might even ring in Bobby Jones.

If Grove goes in the box for the A's, though, Gabby Street probably will respond in a few well chosen words with Wild Bill Hallahan. Both Grove and Hallahan have terrific speed and if a fast ball gets by the catcher this series will have to get along with three umpires.

Grove is about all the A's have for a pitching staff. Earnshaw was pretty good up to five weeks ago, but lately he has been pitching like a Red Sock. None of the other hurlers are much good for anything except using up towels in the shower bath.

The Cards are pretty well heeled for flingers. In addition to Wild William with his zipper they have old Jess Haines and Flint Rhem. These boys both have been in world series action before and they will solve Gauby Street's pitching problem if someone doesn't kidnap Rhem in a hack.

GROVE ONE-MAN STAFF

Except Grove they could kidnap any of the A's pitchers and Connie wouldn't give up a nickel for ransom. In fact, he probably would be glad to have someone else get stuck for their board.

So if the A's are going to figure in this series it is up to the boys to slug hard. They have plenty

ENS, DREYFUSS CONFER

The Pirate managerial uncertainty may be straightened out in the next day or two. Manager Jewel Ens returned to Pittsburgh yesterday with many of his players and later Jewel conferred with Owner Barney Dreyfuss, but it was given out by the Pittsburgh officials that nothing definite was done regarding Ens' status for next season.

The Pittsburgh pilot said his employers are scheduled to meet again today. Ens expect to remain here with his family for two or three days after which he will leave for New York, where he will embark with other baseball folks for Cuba. Jewel will lead a team of National Leaguers in an exhibition series on the island.

Every member of the Pittsburgh Club hopes that Ens will be at the helm again next year. They feel that his club would have been in the flag fight all year had there not been a remarkable number of sick and injured stars.

Local Sales Heads Defeat Cleveland

CARDS, MACKS SET TO OPEN WORLD SERIES

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.
Staff Correspondent.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—The two score of more diamond warriors who represent the five best teams in the United States are close to the battle scene today and the natives of Philadelphia, judging by their actions, are fully aware of the importance of it all.

Shibe Park, the home of the World Champion Athletics, is not nearly large enough to care for those who would like to be among those present tomorrow afternoon, when their beloved "A's" and Cardinals jump off in the series that has come to be what might be termed the high spot in American sport.

UTILIZE HOUSETOPS

Owners of residences affording good views saw to it that thousands witnessed last year's fights, who would have had to listen in on radios had it not been for the rough and ready bleachers which were strung along these housetops in the big emergency. And it is probable that these real estate owners made more than enough to pay for their taxes by the neat trick. These same dwellings will do scout duty again this year.

The members of the contending clubs are pepped up in a corresponding manner. The concensus of opinion in the National League circles now that the race is over, is to the effect that the best club of the circuit is representing the senior circuit in the October classic. In view of the devastation wrought on National League teams in the past three years, this feeling is a source of consolation.

CARDS CONFIDENT

The Redbirds and their friends are not underestimating the Athletics by any means, but the Cardinals are convinced that player to player and collectively they are a better ball club than is the Mackian band.

The official news from Manager Street regarding his mound selection was not surprising. It had been known for some time that Burleigh Grimes would be on the slab in the first battle. The strong armed veteran of the saliva flings appears to have earned the honor on sheer ability and nerve.

The Redbirds put it up to Grimes to win the final clash of the crucial series in Brooklyn and the ace came through like an infantry wave, his next appearance on the mound called for a victory over the Pirates at a time when a false step might have been serious. Grimes put on even more steam in this crisis and he came out with a shutout success. In view of his recent showings he should be close to form for the big ordeal of tomorrow.

World Series Managers Write for Sun-Telegraph

The only authorized stories of the rival managers in the world series that gets under way in Philadelphia tomorrow are appearing daily in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Both Connie Mack, pilot of the Athletics, and Gabby Street, leader of the Cardinals, are under contract to present their views in copyrighted articles for the Sun-Telegraph exclusively in Pittsburgh.

In addition to these two stars, the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph also will have writing for it at the series:

James J. Long, famous sports columnist.
Davis J. Walsh, and others.

The best photographs of the series will augment the service for readers of this newspaper, and the games will be flashed, play by play, on the electric scoreboard at Grant street and Strawberry way. Join the party and see every ball and strike and hit and dazzling play recorded on this master board, and, as soon as the game is over, buy your copy of the World Series Extra and read all about it. THE DROPPING OF Frankie Frederick as manager of the Pittsburgh club may be the only change among the pilots of the National Hockey League for the 1930-31 season. Though Owner William V. Dwyer has remained silent on the subject, it is understood that Lionel Conacher, former Pirate skater, will not be reappointed skipper of the New York Americans. That means he will be traded, in all probability, as before he left for his Canadian home last spring he informed Dwyer that if demoted he would like to be shifted to some other club. Dwyer is said to realize that a dissatisfied player is just about worthless to a club, and therefore he is expected to make a trade that will send Conny elsewhere. DELVECCHIO LEADER AT CAMBRIDGE SPRINGS

ALCROFT TRAILS PERRY BY STROKE

CAMBRIDGE SPRINGS, Pa., Sept. 30.—Perry Del Vecchio, pro and greenkeeper at the Greensburg Country Club, and Albert Alcroft, of the Youngstown (O.) Country Club, were prepared to battle it out over the 36-hole route today for first money in the annual Northwestern Pennsylvania professionals' title tournament now under way at the Riverside Golf Club here.

These two players held the lead over a field of 32 contestants at the close of the first 36 holes of play yesterday, and unless a sudden reversal of form is shown by three or four others today, they should have the fight for first place to themselves.

ALCROFT STROKE BEHIND

Del Vecchio took the lead on the first 18-hole round, when he carded a fine 70, one over par figures, for the lengthened course, and he followed it up with a 72 in the afternoon. Alcroft, three shots back of the leader at lunch time, shot a par 69 in the afternoon to pick up one of the strokes. Al was a stroke higher than Perry's 142 total when the sun went down.

Frank Presby, assistant to Alcroft at the Youngstown Country Club, turned in a fine 72 to land second place at the end of the first round, but he slipped down the list when he carded a 74 in the afternoon. He is now deadlocked for third place with Jack Gordon, veteran Buffalo shotmaker, and Johnny Capebianco, young pro at the Meadville Country Club, who carded a pair of 73s yesterday.

Vince Eldred, of the Highland Country Club; Fred Baroni, of Stanton Heights, and Earl Rowley, of Buffalo, are still in the fight for money positions, carding 147, 148 and 150, respectively.

NEARS COURSE RECORD

Alcroft's 69 came within a stroke of the course record of 68 set by Ted Luther and Harry Cooper in last year's tournament. The Youngstown pro had a splendid opportunity to clip several strokes from the record, but got into difficulties near the end of the journey and finished 5-4-4. He was out in 32, two under par, and back in 37, two over regulation figures. His card:

Out 5 3 3 4 4 4 4 5 5 37
In ..... 4 5 3 4 4 4 4 5 4 37—69

Scores, for the first 36 holes yesterday:

Saturday—Maria Manhole at Pittsburgh Pioneers, Pittsburgh Chelsea at Penn Smith, Clan Douglas at Pierpont Motors, Union Heights at Sons of St. George.

Another big list of soccer games is carded locally this week-end. On Saturday four games will be played in the Central League. Last week's results did not flash any startling upsets. Buff Donnelli got into the Morgan lineup, and, as usual, Millers Run scored a flock of runs. Bridgeville and Castle Shannon Fintex both scored impressive wins, so it seems when Morgan, Bridgeville and Fintex clash something worth while should be on tap. Frank Broggi showed he is still dangerous around goal by scoring both of the Fintex goals.

The Celtics again demonstrated superiority over the Rovers, though the Dunlop crowd played the best soccer, from a scientific standpoint. The Green and White, however, is getting many American-born players in its lineup, who have one idea—that of getting goals. Every time Ray Barrett and his comrades got away they were dangerous.

The Celtics and Pierpoints loom as real contenders, but Clan Douglas and the Union Switch will give them a real tussle.

MY 50 YEARS IN BASEBALL

By CONNIE MACK, MANAGER OF WORLD CHAMPION PHILADELPHIA ATHLETICS

INSTALLMENT NO. 20.

Connie Mack.

As the season of 1900 ended, the American League had a tangible program which it believed would give it a place in the sun. At first the founders of the new circuit had hoped for a bloodless invasion.

They asked consent of the senior league to allow them to place teams in eastern cities, so that the two circuits could live in harmony.

The owners of National League clubs did not view the matter with the enthusiasm displayed by the American Leaguers. In their minds loomed a lusty young rival, full of ardor and action, that meant to invade their territory and cripple their money-making powers.

Already it had maneuvered its way into Chicago while they were napping and they didn't propose to permit them to make any fresh incursions on their soil. So this proposal of the American League met with positive refusal.

The American League owners now had gone too far to turn back gracefully. They were too whole-hearted in their plans to accept this opposition.

So at a gathering of the club owners they decided that, consent or no consent, they would establish themselves as a major league in the following spring and place teams to the best advantage in the East.

LEAGUE IS LAUNCHED

More meetings followed in this fall of 1900 in which the owners discussed the gigantic tasks before them and mapped out their battle plans. Finally, at a meeting in which President Johnson, Charles Comiskey, Thomas Loftus, Charles Somers and myself deliberated, we announced that we had thrown our hat into the ring.

We told the newspaper reporters that we had decided to come out on a strict major league basis, with four clubs in the East and four in the West.

In the East, clubs were to be placed in Philadelphia, Boston, Washington and Baltimore, and in the West there would be clubs in Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland and Milwaukee.

The Philadelphia franchise was awarded to me and President Johnson advised me to leave immediately for that city and try to interest local capitalists in helping to finance the undertaking. I myself retaining a goodly interest.

President Johnson suggested that I might do well to see Benjamin F. Shibe, who was one of the owners in the great baseball and baseball equipment manufacturing firm of A. J. Reach Company. He said he would make an admirable president of the club.

SHIBE BUYS INTEREST

Johnson gave me a good lead. I found Mr. Shibe a most delightful man and sympathetic with the aims of the new major league. The result was that just before the season opened Mr. Shibe bought an interest in the club and was chosen president.

I might say here that it was one of the most fortunate moves I ever made when I succeeded in getting Mr. Shibe as a colleague. He was a man of vision, the soul of integrity and an able business man.

In the early days of the Athletics, when shoals were all around us, this dispassionate and crafty Philadelphia baseball manufacturer steered us to safety.

Charles Somers, of Cleveland, had helped back the club in its building days with the proviso that he would get out when I interested Philadelphia capital.

It was from Mr. Somers that Mr. Shibe bought the holdings to give him an interest in the club.

JOHNSON INSPIRES CONNIE

Nobody can realize the enormous labor facing one who is trying to establish a new major league club in a city. I was on my feet all day, racing around the city to make my plans.

Before Mr. Shibe entered the club, we existed only on paper. We had no grounds, no team, but only a franchise and this would be null and void unless I changed it into a reality.

There were times in those days when I almost thought I had undertaken an impossible task, for I met with many rebuffs from Philadelphians who told me frankly that a second club never would prosper in Philadelphia and even doubted if I could ever start the season.

In addition to working out details here, I was constantly traveling to Chicago to confer with President Johnson. If my enthusiasm ever flagged, if I ever had a pessimistic note in my voice about the Philadelphia situation, President Johnson never failed to revive my spirits.

PARK SITE SELECTED

My first important duty was to look around for grounds. In my rambles around Philadelphia, I don't believe there was a section that I overlooked.

At last my partners and I agreed on the grounds at Twenty-ninth and Oxford streets and we accordingly acquired a 10-year lease from the Martin estate. We named it Columbia Park and proceeded to build an inexpensive single deck, wooden grandstand.

I might say that one of the sites rejected at the time now adjoins the present Shibe Park. This was the ground at the northeast corner of Twenty-second street and Lehigh avenue now occupied by a big factory.

This site was my own personal selection and I strongly recommended that it be chosen, but some of our advisors really interested in our success argued that it was not feasible and it was dropped.

Nine years later we built Shibe Park, adjoining it at Twenty-first and Lehigh avenue. Oddly enough, just before the world series of 1929, the Athletics Club rented a top floor of the factory on my original site to fill the orders for world series tickets.

The papers giving us a 10-year foothold at Twenty-ninth and Oxford streets were duly signed. We were making progress, but were not yet out of the woods.

Jones Is Given Walker Cup; Has 'em All

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—(AP.)—Robert T. Jones, Jr., will have five golf cups in his custody for the next year instead of four. The United States Golf Association decided yesterday that, since Jones, who was captain of the last two Walker Cup teams, had all the other emblems of national championships in his possession, he should have the Walker Cup too. It was shipped to Atlanta.

The Walker Cup, emblematic of international amateur team supremacy, has been retained by the U. S. G. A. offices and has never been sent to an individual in the past.

RUTH CONCEDES MACKMEN EDGE IN OUTFIELD

By BABE RUTH

Baseball's Highest Salaried Player.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—In my previous articles on the coming series I have discussed the catching and the infielding, giving the Athletics the call behind the bat and rating the Cardinal infield as having an edge on the Mack infield in all around play. I have also discussed the pitching of each club separately, without attempting to compare the staffs. In this article I will give my views on the outfielders, and also tell how I figure the pitching staffs compare.

Babe Ruth

Each outfield has a powerful hitter in left field and a great ground coverer, though less efficient hitter in center. The Cardinals have more batting strength in the players who are assigned at various times to right field, but there is none of them, regardless of a better batting mark, whom I would rate above Bing Miller, of the A's. Miller is not what you would call a great hitter, and yet he is as dangerous around that plate as any player is likely to be during the series. Defensively, he rates very high.

SIMMONS REAL STAR

I regard Al Simmons as one of the best outfielders I have looked at in years and he is a tremendous hitter as well. I think his work this year puts him above Hafey even though Chick is quite a top-notcher himself. It is a case of two high class players in this position, each the best hitter of his own group. I look to Hafey having a good series this year. He is too good a player to fail again in a world series. You will recall that Chick fell far below normal in the series between Yanks and Cardinals in 1926, and again in 1928. He got only five hits in seven games four years ago, and only three hits in four games two years ago.

I see little to choose between Douthit and Haas. There is little difference in their hitting and either one can cover that outfield like the morning dew. I think these two players come closer to being equal in all-around ability than any two players of similar positions on the two clubs. Each rates as a great defensive player and each as a fairly good hitter.

As I said above, I like Miller over Watkins, Orsatti, Blades or Fisher. If Mack calls on a substitute for outfield duty I presume it will be Homer Summa, a very capable flychaser and good hitter as well. Figuring the Athletics have the edge in left and right fields, and a standoff at center, I must rate the A's a little above the Cardinals in this respect.

Now for the pitching comparison. On one side Grove and Earnshaw are the standout pitchers, and on the other Grimes and Hallahan are the standouts. I figure Grove and Earnshaw as the top two of all the series pitchers, and I figure Grimes above all the others. I may be wrong about Hallahan, but I do not expect to see him shine in this series. I know he is the strikeout king of his league, but his lack of control is against him. So is the fact that he is a left-hander. The A's love southpaws and they love to walk to first base.

Figuring that Quinn and Rommel will be used only for relief pitching for the A's, and that Bell, Lindsey and Grabowski will fill the same role for the Cardinals, we have five pitchers on each club who may be classed as starters. Mack has Grove, Earnshaw, Walberg, Shores and Mahaffey. Street has Grimes, Johnson, Hallahan, Haines and Rhem.

There is plenty of pitching in either of these groups, with experience in favor of the Cardinals. But Grove and Earnshaw make that Philadelphia pitching too strong, I believe, for the National Leaguers to match. These two headliners have been in more games this year than any other pitchers. They think nothing of pitching one day and saving a game the next. As I mentioned in a previous article, they are worth more to a club than just two pitchers who must have a certain amount of rest between games.

FRANKIE FRISCH RECOVERING

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—(AP.)—Frankie Frisch, captain and star second baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, who arrived yesterday for the World Series tomorrow, is suffering from an attack of lumbago. He said, however, he fully expected to be in shape to meet the Athletics in the opening game.

"I have had it for two or three days," the Fordham flash said at his hotel, "but it isn't very serious and I'll be all right by Wednesday. I caught cold during our last game with Pittsburgh and it settled in my back. Judging from the way I feel now, I'll be in good shape by Wednesday."

RIVER SPORTS RACES CARDED

The celebration of the first anniversary of the nine-foot river stage with a mardi gras beginning next Monday is not going to be without a sports program. There is going to be one of the most magnetic events of the year staged on the Monongahela in the nature of motor boat races, a sport that has been more or less on "the shelf" hereabouts for some time. These will be staged on the second day of the celebration.

The sports committee, headed Ralph Hite is lining up a pretentious field of speed boats, which will be the major event of the surf program. Surf board riding exhibitions also are included.

There will be races in three classes, viz: B, C and D, with a handsome trophy going to the victor in each division. Entries for the racing event are being received by Hite at 418 Federal street with the final date of entry set for next Thursday.

All events except the surf attractions will be staged under the roofs of the excursion steamers Greater Pittsburgh and the Roosevelt, which will be moored at the foot of Water street and the Monongahela wharf during the Mardi Gras.

CARD BATTERS USUALLY SOLVE SOUTHPAWS

By CHARLES (GABBY) STREET
Manager St. Louis Cardinals.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 25.—The Athletics had a chance to scout the Cardinals [illegible] series at Philadelphia [illegible] will give them [illegible] and I know that Connie Mack [illegible] that all [illegible] we were playing the Phils. For instance, the 29-16 game that [illegible]

Gabby Street

We did show some powerful batting but our pitching was terrible and when the pitching is bad it can make the best team in the league look like a set of set-ups.

And another thing about the scouting. We would have had this world series clinched if some good friends in Philadelphia hadn't told players who knew [illegible] they've been waiting for A's all year and have given me a really good line on Mack hitters. That's of more value than scouting a series. A batter who naturally pulls to left field all year may be a right field hitter in the series and give the scouts the wrong impression. Also a batter who prefers a fast one may hit a couple of off-ones good and the scout who tells the manager that such a pitcher should be given high signs is making it tough for that batter.

PLAYS PERCENTAGE

Of course, we [illegible] percentage in this series. We [illegible] where to play for the different hitters and while percentage doesn't work out always it's a short cut [illegible] to play for it.

I continue to [illegible] Lefty Grove and the rest. He must be a pretty great pitcher right but did you ever hear me think that we couldn't beat a team in the field with only one left-handed batter and that would be Jim Bottomley and if anybody thinks Jim is a flash against left-handers he's just all wrong.

Douthit, Adams, Frisch, Hafey, Blades, Wilson or Marion, Gelbert and our pitchers are right-handed batters. Ivan Hallahan bats right-handed, so we'll have at least that much of the percentage in our favor when we face Grove. And what if we get Grove and Earnshaw out of there? That's where we've got the edge. We've got five pitchers all ready to go and therefore we're better equipped to use our pinch hitters because if we take a pitcher out for a batter we know that we have several other hurlers who can go in there and pitch without weakening our defense. On the other hand if Mack has only three pitchers he might hesitate to remove one, especially if we happened to upset his staff a little by a few early series bombardments.

BOTTOMLEY HITS STRIDE

One of the encouraging things of the late games of our pennant drive was the fine hitting of Jim Bottomley. Jim, you know, has had a remarkable year considering all the bad luck he had. A player with less nerve would have been out half the season but Jim stayed in there when he had a badly swollen thumb and carried on gamely even when he knew that his batting average was going down and his fielding also. But the thumb seems to be better now and Jim has helped us win many a game in the last couple of weeks.

When I look back over the season and the hot pennant race I can't help thanking my stars that I had a gamester like Bottomley to play first base for me. That boy has been mighty valuable and there never was a more loyal worker.

BILLY SULLIVAN HOLDS SHIBE PARK FORT

Undaunted by his arrest Saturday night, Billy Sullivan is back in line waiting for the bleachers seat sale to open for the world series at Shibe Park, Philadelphia tomorrow. He began his vigil 36 hours before starting time for the opener. Arrest was caused by a bonfire started by boys in the vicinity.

regard to the A's staff specifically. One year ago the ace lefthander caused much commotion by putting Howard Ehmke on the slab and what a mess this second-string performer made of the Cubs.

But Ehmke is no longer a member of the select band so that Connie, if he pulls a surprise, will have to spring something new.

GROVE MAY HURL

On form, one would say that Lefty Grove would be the proper selection and it may be that the star southpaw will oppose the Redbirds. The biggest winner in the sport this season, Grove surely has earned the right to the role. Sore fingers on his pitching hand was given as the cause for Mack's refusal to start Grove last year.

George Earnshaw is the other ace of the Mack shutpshooting staff and according to all who have had intimate dealings this portsider is one of the best in the game.

One doesn't have to use "ifs" and buts in dwelling upon the Philadelphia catching selection. The so-called incomparable Mickey Cochrane will be under the hat for the home octagon. The Redbird contingent is not so sure in this matter.

WILSON MAY CATCH

Jimmy Wilson will receive Grimes if he is able to do his task, but the clever Jimmy still suffers from a lame ankle, an injury he received while the Cardinals and Giants were fighting it out at the Polo Grounds a couple of weeks ago. Gus Mancuso, youthful receiver who won fame after Wilson went down, will be the National League mankman, provided Wilson is out.

There is a chance that Earl Smith, former Pirate catcher will get into action in the series but he first would have to be made eligible.

BAIN BEATS DEVOS

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 26.—Abie Bain, Newark, N. J., welterweight, was awarded a ten-round decision over Steve Dewos, of New Jersey, in the main bout of a 10-round contest last night. Bain, a southpaw, weighed 144; Devos, 141.

of power when you put a piece of lumber in their hands. The last world series when those A's started swatting the apple at Shibe Park, the Cubs' centerfielder would have caught more flies if he had been flagpole sitting a couple of feet under the pennant.

The Cards can lift a few out of the infield, too, and if they keep up the stride they had the last six weeks of the season Connie Mack will look older than 67 years before the seventh game is over.

Sport Vignettes

The All-America Panic, better known as the world series, once more is upon us. The best thing about it is that, like Christmas, it comes only once a year. This will be the twenty-seventh time they have perpetrated the atrocity, our own Pittsburgh Pirates and the Boston Red Sox having figured in the first embroglio back in 1903. The following year the New York Giants refused to meet the Sox, but, since 1905, there has not been a break in the interleague post-season battles.

A pleasing feature of Pitt's work in its opening game last Saturday was the form of Capt. Eddie Baker, who, it seemed, carried the ball oftener than in any whole season before. He starred in all departments, as a field leader, runner, passer, receiver of passes, kicker and in interference. Don't be surprised if he should finish up his senior year as Pittsburgh's annual bidder for all-America honors. By the way, the Panthers showed a lot of strength in the matter of reserves, and, as Al Slack, one of the officials of the contest, observed later, in the reserves lies the strength of any football "club."

Wally Schang, catcher and coach of the Athletics, will be participating in his seventh cut of the world series here this year. He was with the Athletics in 1913 and '14, the Red Sox in 1918 and the Yankees in 1921, '22 and '23. Eddie Collins, coach of the A's, is one up on Wally at that. He played on the 1910, '11, '13 and '14 Athletic team and was with the White Sox when they won in 1917 and '19 and back with the Athletics last year. And just think, some of the good guys like Napi Lajoie and Harry Heilmann and Dazzy Vance never have been lucky enough to get a single slice of the melon.

Perhaps Bobby Jones has conquered all of the golfing worlds, but what of it? He still has to demonstrate his mastery on the dinky courses. It appear they have been developed just in time to save him from a life of boredom. The same people who used to have trouble pronouncing the name of Young Xeny when the Erie dentist was fighting around here are the ones who write in to know how the title of this column is pronounced. Xeny was spoken as if it were spelled Zeeny, while Vignettes is rolled around the tongue as Vin-yettes. Harry Harris, the middleweight boxer of Bellaire, O., now making his home here and training at the Homewood Athletic Club, has a brother named Jimmy who is a guard on the Notre Dame football eleven and will be seen in action against Pitt at the Stadium. Jhamy also is known as Pomp, a contraction of Pompadour, because of his mop of hair.

Harry Harris greatly resembles Gene Tunney in his build, facial features and manner of boxing and hitting and is a favorite with the local fans. Brother Jimmy, a 200-pounder, prepped at Linsly Institute in Wheeling and at Chattanooga (Tenn.) Preparatory School and has caught the eagle eye of Coach Knute Rockne, although he is only a sophomore with the South Bend Irish. Incidentally, if he starts against Pitt he will play opposite Hart Morris, the Pitt guard who also hails from Bellaire and against whom he played for several years in high school.—HARRY KECK.

CONNIE SCOUTS IDEA CARDS ARE 'SHOT'

Manager Philadelphia Athletics.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—When I hear or read that the Cardinals will not be fit battlers for us because they were so late in clinching the National League pennant I get all out of patience.

It is pictured that Gabby Street's men, from the rigors of the closing weeks of one of the most grueling and muscle-straining pennant campaigns in history, would enter the series mentally and physically tired and the Athletics, from having a less severe ordeal to win, would find the National League foe easy.

The Cardinals had to be stout-hearted and heroic to pass through the fire they did to be successful in their loop.

Beware of such a team!

Their soul-stirring experiences in the last three weeks of the campaign may have tuned them just right for the big games to come next Wednesday.

"SCOUTS" SERIES

None of the Athletics' players are for a minute belittling the Cardinals and they feel certain that they will have to reach the peak of their game to win.

I had a glimpse of the Cardinals on their last day in Philadelphia and they looked to me to be a swift-moving, skillful team that ought to be dangerous for any opponent.

They have plenty of confidence in themselves and seem able to rise to the occasion. Jim Bottomley is an inspiring first baseman, always chattering encouragement to the pitcher, and he also wields a break-up bat.

Frankie Frisch is electric in his manner and always a wide-awake second baseman and a dangerous hitter in a pinch. Frisch is a smart player and has had plenty of world series experience to help him in the coming games.

I will not go through the whole list, but Outfielders Douthit and Hafey attracted my eye. Gelbert, a young Pennsylvania boy, son of a famous University of Pennsylvania athlete, seems very sure of himself at short.

BREAKS MAY DECIDE

So it is inconceivable to me how anybody can insinuate that such a well-gunned team can't give another team a fight.

Naturally, we think we will win, but we know we will have to play our best game to do it.

Many things can happen in short series. There are breaks to be taken into consideration. One bad bounding ball on which there might be a double play may cost a game.

A Texas leaguer, why there are a half-dozen horrors that can quickly change a victory into defeat without the charge being made of bad ball playing or pitching.

There's another reason why we know we will have to give the Cardinals everything we have to win the world championship for the second straight year.

MILLVALE BOUTS OFF; COLD

Sports Editor.

Old Man Winter is well on his way. If the chill breezes of the last few days haven't convinced you on this score, give ear to the announcement from Charley Luch, Hickey Park matchmaker, that he has decided to call off his scheduled final show of the outdoor season in Millvale Thursday night.

"I don't want our customrs to have to buy earmuffs to sit in on a show," said Luch, in announcing his decision to call it quits. "I went to the arena this morning and almost had to chop the ice off the seats with an ax (that may be a bit of an exaggeration, but it's in Cholly's own words), and so that's that. We are planning to open our indoor season at the Etna Elks' Temple one week from next Wednesday night, and don't want our customers to die from penumonia before then. You see, we have an ulterior motive along with the caring for the comfort of our patrons."

Luch had scheduled a card of four eight-round bouts and a six-round opening preliminary for Thursday, with Al Becker and Alex Simms in the top spot.

HOLT MEETS KELLY

Billy Holt, Negro welterweight, formerly of Canton, O., now of Pittsburgh, and Jimmy Kelly, of Alliance, O., who recently broke the jaw of Sammy O'Dell, Akron Negro, in a bout, have been signed by Apples Meyers for the six-round semi-final to his Marty Gold-Frankie (Kid) Anslem bout at the Moose Temple Friday night.

Kelly is a southpaw and touted as a fine hitter. Holt also is a heavy puncher.

Only the opening bout remains to be closed to complete the card for Motor Square Garden's re-opening show next Monday night. Tony Herrera and Joe Glick are in the main bout, Harry Harris and Chuck Taggert in the eight-round semi-final and Al Becker and Tom McCaffrey in the second bout.

Jim McGirr, McKeesport promoter, expects to round out his bill today for his show Thursday night, which will be topped off by two 10-round bouts, in one of which Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, will box Johnny Popics, of Wheeling. Young Rudy, of Charleroi, and Paul Oger, of Wheeling, are in the other top number.

Between Rounds

K. O. Kelly boxes Mike Dragovic, K. O. Kitts meets Joe Rocko and Jack Rose opposes Hoot Berger in three 10-round bouts making up a bruiser card at Barberton, O., Thursday night.

Robert Bustachi's new light heavyweight, Lou Johnson, has begun showing his form in his workouts with Dewey Franks and Buck McTiernan and is ready to take on any of the men, his weight around here, regardless. Peter Pirrone and Harold Burton, Lou have quite a few.

Frank Novak, North side bantamweight returns to the ring in one of the bouts of the second show at Motor Square Garden one week from next Monday. He will meet Mario Pinto, of McKees Rocks.

Young Firpo boxes Frankie Rapp tomorrow night, for Andersen meets Vincent Forgione Thursday night and Pat Hoke battles Sailor Matte on Friday in world series week bouts in Philadelphia.

AMBRIDGE GETS GRID LOOP BERTH

GAME TOMORROW NIGHT
Hope Harvey Majestics at Burns A. A.

GAMES SUNDAY
West View at Ambridge Mystics.
Burns A. A. at Mckeesport Olympics.
East Pittsburgh at Hope Harvey Majestics.

By TOM BIRKS.

The Ambridge Mystics, managed by Pat Comore and backed by P. J. Caul, well-known Ohio Valley sportsman, is the latest addition to the Western Pennsylvania independent gridiron conference. The Black and White of Ambridge came into the loop in place of the McChesneytown team of Latrobe.

The Big Red Machine, headed by Hector Kennedy, has been having troubles of its own getting started. The lack of a home field finally caused the Latrobe mentor to leave the field. Last Saturday found the club being unable to get night football started until October 11, and this tended to throw the gridiron schedule out of order.

Then McChesneytown also found itself on the short end of a practice game with Christy Park, and that did not help matters.

REAL ELEVEN

The Mystics have had a real club for three seasons, playing the leading teams of the district. Recently a new ball park, with a grandstand and beautiful playing arena was opened, and Caul sponsor of the club wants the best attractions for the team. With all of the Ohio Valley to draw from, capacity crowds should be the order of things at the Fair Oaks Grounds. West View is scheduled to open the Mystics' season in the conference.

Pat Comore has been endeavoring to get his team into the loop since the initial meeting, but it was not considered advisable to change the original six unless a weak member developed.

The Mystics opened against the Library Tigers and Pleasant Valley Smilers and won both games with ease. Johnny Dunsky, manager of the Smilers, stated last evening that the Mystics would make them all step as it was the hardest club the Smilers had met in two seasons.

ROSTER SET

Gus Holzinger, formerly of Grove City, is coaching the club, and will start against West View a fullback Shelton, formerly of Duquesne University, and Zaneski, former Rochester High School star, will be the halfbacks, with Sheehan calling the signals.

The ends are Sheppard and Gluts, the tackles, Little and Grouzisky, the guards, Smith and Cappets, and the center is Chippella, classed as one of the best pivots in sandlot circles. That will probably be the starting line-up against Muzzio's team. Other members are Aggrecky, Quill, Cottage, Almquist, Laric, Cuda, Giebo, Rouyetz and Gilbert.

DAVE BEATEN BY HARVEY IN LONDON

LONDON, Sept. 30.—(INS.)—Despite Len Harvey's victory over Dave Shade by a decision at Albert Hall here last night, fistic experts were convinced today Mickey Walker's middleweight championship crown will rest secure for the time being.

The British middleweight champion fought eagely and well, but he obviously lacked the steam and punch necessary for a victory over the titleholder. Harvey captured the decision from the Californian in the final rounds through scoring points with his long left leads.

The bout coursed along on a nearly even keel until the eleventh round, when Shade cracked the British champion a blow that made the latter reel. Harvey recovered quickly when Shade was unable to deliver the finishing punch.

In the last four rounds Harvey displayed a superior stamina and speedier punching over the American, piling up the winning points. In the early part of the final round, however, Shade slipped over a farewell right cross that shook the Britisher from head to foot.

While Harvey was commended for his quick footwork and speedy boxing, experts attributed a greater aggressiveness and more effective infighting to Shade.

SHEA LOSES TO MASSEY

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—(AP.)—Lou Massey, Philadelphia featherweight, was awarded the decision over Eddie Shea, slugging little Chicago battler, in the 10-round main event, inaugurating the Arena's indoor season here last night. Massey weighed 124½, and Shea 125. The decision was unanimous with many of the fans. One of the judges voted for a draw, and the referee's decision divided the spoil.

DENIES HOOVER IS TARGET

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 (A.P.)—Charles Michelson, director of publicity for the Democratic National Committee, denied that he had been employed to "smear Hoover".

In a radio speech over the National Broadcasting System, Michelson described reports that he had been employed for that purpose as "pure fiction."

Michelson said he had been employed by Chairman Raskob of the Democratic National Committee and Chairman Shouse of the Democratic Executive Committee because he was presumed to know "more about publicity methods and how to make them effective than they," he explained.

"Having put me on the job, they naturally left it to me to perform the not at all mysterious task of getting before the people the Democratic side of things."

Michelson added that President Hoover had "come under fire rather incidentally."

PARTIES ISSUE HANDBOOKS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—(AP.)—The political campaign has reached the handbook stage at Washington with both the Republican and Democratic national committees issuing textbooks for 1930.

The Republican National Committee published two pamphlets, one by Senator Hebert, of Rhode Island, entitled "Democrats Deliberately Obstruct Relief Plans," and the other by Senator Hatfield, of West Virginia, headed "Prices Decrease Under Republican Tariff."

The Democratic National Committee handbook was of 60 pages and was entitled "Democratic Summary of Campaign Issues 1930." It declared in the opening sentence:

"The dominant issue in the congressional campaign of 1930 is the failure of the Republican administration, now well on in its second year, to fulfill the promises on which it based its claim for election in 1928."

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Sept. 30.—Among the crowds attending the seventy-eighth annual Carmichaels Fair was John M. Garard, retired oil operator of Columbus, O., who has attended every fair held at Carmichaels.

When a child of six months he was carried to the first fair by his mother and since has never failed to attend the annual exhibition.

CHRISTIE FILM IN COMBINE

The new organization will be known as the Metropolitan-Christie Picture Corporation with a capitalization of $10,000,000. Charles H. Christie will be president and William S. Holman, general manager. The announcement said San Francisco and New York banks were behind the merger.

Christie, long known as a producer of comedies, said the new firm would produce feature-length talking pictures and comedies.

40 FILE CLAIMS TO RIVER BED

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Sept. 30.—(AP.)—Suit seeking title to the old North Canadian River bed in the heart of the Oklahoma City oil field, estimated to be worth more than $1,000,000, upon the contention that a 40-year-old territorial statute gives them ownership, has been filed in District Court by Cora N. Cable and 40 other claimants.

The plaintiffs claim title to the old bed on the grounds that the new course of the river now runs across their property.

An Oklahoma territorial statute passed in 1890, was cited by the plaintiffs. The statute provides that "if a stream forms a new course, abandoning its ancient bed, the owners of the land newly occupied take by way of indemnity, the ancient bed abandoned each in proportion to the land of which he has been deprived."

Aged Woman With Old Gun Gets Intruder

But neither her age nor that of the pistol is a handicap to her when she goes hunting for prowlers.

This she demonstrated when she trained the ancient weapon on a man she found in her bedroom and held him until police arrived.

Identifies Suspect As Confidence Man

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Sept. 30.—Almost one year after she was swindled out of her life savings of $4,000 on the old "bundle game," Mrs. Katherine Rychtorski, of Carmichaels identified Nick Lolick as one of three men who took her money. He is being held by police pending a check-up of his record.

BRIEFS FILED IN OIL MERGERS

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—(A.P.)—Briefs have been filed in Federal Court in the government's suit to enjoin the proposed merger of the Standard Oil Company of New York and the Vacuum Oil Company.

The two companies, former subsidiaries of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, were separated when the parent company was dissolved under a decree issued here in 1909 and approved by the Supreme Court in 1911.

This decree forbade the subsidiaries of the old Standard of New Jersey to recombine in any manner which might have the effect of restoring the combination held to be illegal.

Five judges of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, sitting in Omaha next week, are to consider the briefs and testimony taken in New York in July.

Director of the First National Bank of Portchester

"Patient research—that factor has characterized nearly every great scientific achievement, and the more public spirited the enterprise the more careful it is to insure successful results. Anyone who reads about your modern use of the Ultra Violet Ray in the 'Toasting' of the LUCKY STRIKE tobaccos cannot fail to recognize the long patient research and experiment that must have preceded it. I regard your development as an accomplishment wrought in the finest traditions."

William L. Ward

Consistent with its policy of laying the facts before the public, The American Tobacco Company has invited Mr. William L. Ward to review the reports of the distinguished men who have witnessed LUCKY STRIKE'S famous Toasting Process. The statement of Mr. Ward appears on this page.

LUCKY STRIKE—the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so TOASTING removes harmful irritants that cause throat irritation and coughing. No wonder 20,679 physicians have stated LUCKIES to be less irritating! Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why TOASTING includes the use of the Ultra Violet Ray.

GROUP BANKING BIG ISSUE AT CONFERENCE

Hoover to Reveal Status of Business of Nation in Address Thursday Night

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

CLEVELAND, Sept. 30.

Having ridden the storm of economic recession for a year, 4,850 money lenders of the nation gathered here at the fifty-sixth annual convention of the American Bankers Association to swap ideas and prepare for the reorganization of business which most of them think is already under way.

The first of the four days was given over largely to trade shows for the selfish bread and butter problems of making a profit on the assets of the banks.

Mr. Rukeyser

But the convention will be the official launching of a movement for modernization of the attitude of the Bankers Association toward group banking. Today it is heavily weighted in favor of unit banking, with small city banks having a good unalterable opposition to statewide and even trade area branch and group banking. Both are of that opposition that no progress has been made to set up extensive chains or groups in all parts of the country. Members of the economic policy committee, whose personnel includes Joseph Hecht, president of the Hibernia Bank and Trust Company of New Orleans; Paul M. Warburg of New York, former vice governor of the Federal Reserve Board, and Gil Lennon of Ayres, vice president of the Cleveland Trust Company and economic adviser of the Van Sweringens, are reported to be resting under the traditional policy and have been holding repeated meetings behind closed doors to find a formular for changing the association's policy without doing violence to the yearning for consistency.

It is expected the report of the commission will emphasize the

Steel Takes Over Oil Well Supply

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

FINAL PREPARATIONS have been made for the transfer of the assets of the Oil Well Supply Company to the United States Steel Corporation today. Tomorrow operations will be under the newly formed Oil Well Supply Company of New Jersey, a subsidiary of the Steel Corporation.

Based on yesterday's closing price for United States Steel common, the supply business changed hands for $16,974,548.

Under the agreement payment was to be made with 64,992 shares of Steel common and $6,865,800 cash. Steel had the option of making the cash portion of the payment in stock figured at the closing price two days prior to the consummation of the sale. It is understood that the entire payment was made in stock. On the basis of Saturday's close for Steel common at 158¼, the cash portion of the payment would be equivalent to 43,385 shares of stock, giving Oil Well a total of 108,377 shares.

Name Changed

THE PURCHASE DID NOT include the charter of the old Oil Well Supply Company of Pennsylvania. At a recent meeting of stockholders the name was changed to the Pittsburgh United Corporation. Payment for the assets is to be made to this organization which will list its stock on the New York Stock Exchange, replacing the existing Oil Well Supply stock.

Officers of Pittsburgh United Corporation are J. H. Hillman, Jr., president; A. B. Sheets, vice president and assistant treasurer; Charles A. Meyer, treasurer, and Thomas Watson, secretary.

The management of the old Oil Well Supply Company will continue to operate the purchased business for United States Steel.

To Call Debentures

THE SOLE ASSET of Pittsburgh United Corporation will be its holdings of United States Steel stock. The Steel Corporation has assumed all the debts of the company except $800,000 of 6 per cent debentures of the Wilson Snyder Manufacturing Corporation, a subsidiary. These will be called at 103 within a few days. Funds to carry out this operation have been borrowed and deposited with the trustee for the bonds.

The company has $6,069,000 of 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock outstanding which is callable at 110. No announcement has been made as to whether or not the preferred stock is to be called. This step would necessitate the sale of part of the company's holdings of Steel stock.

Steel common and Pittsburgh United preferred each pay $7 annually. The sale of Steel at a higher price to retire the preferred at 110 would seem to be an advantageous step for the common holders. On the other hand, the possibility of getting a better market for Steel common in the future would have to be taken into consideration.

Common Worth $24.29

PITTSBURGH UNITED has 389,972 shares of common stock outstanding. After deducting the cost of calling the Wilson Snyder debentures and the Pittsburgh United preferred from the total market price of the block of Steel common at the close yesterday, a book value of $9,474,648 is indicated for the common stock. This would be equivalent to $24.29 a share.

Government Sues Great Northern

ST. PAUL, Sept. 30.—The federal government has filed suit here against the Great Northern Railway for $1,329,785, which it is alleged represents an overpayment to the railway arising out of federal control. The road will contest the claim.

Vacuum, Wadhams Reach Agreement

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—An agreement has been reached looking to the union of Wadhams Oil Corporation of Milwaukee, Wis., with the Vacuum Oil Company, on the basis of nine shares of Vacuum stock for 10 shares of Wadhams.

Market Observers Differ Over Dimensions of Short Account

Wall Street was apparently of a mind to more or less sidestep the public utility shares for the time being. Evidently the financial community was disposed to go easy in that quarter of the list pending some inkling of the direction which the Federal Trade Commission investigation of the industry will take. This inquiry, under way for some time, was temporarily discontinued last June when the commission moved to take its customary summer recess. Hearings have now been resumed, however, and it is posible that not a little of the recent selling in the power and light shares may have been occasioned by the knowledge of the fact that the date for reopening of the commission's inquiry was close at hand.

That production of bituminous coal and of anthracite coal is to-day just as much a barometer of industrial activity as it was a few years ago, it is interesting to find that output of both kinds of fuel is lagging considerably by comparison with a year ago. Output of bituminous coal is estimated at 8,915,000 net tons for the week ended September 20, a drop of 230,000 tons from the previous week and in contrast with output of 11,013,000 tons reported for the same week a year ago. To the foregoing date this years output has been running about 12 per cent under the same time a year ago. Anthracite is also lagging behind and for the week ended September 20 Pennsylvania output fell 11.6 per cent under the previous week and almost 20 per cent under the output for the same week a year ago.

Rallying tendencies cropped out again before middays yesterday once more the market was found wanting in recuperative powers. A few of the speculative leaders spurted sharply in the morning under the leadership of American Can, steel common and General Electric. These three pivotal industrials rallied rather spectacularly for a spell, with Westinghouse Electric rebounding with considerable emphasis also. But it became increasingly difficult to maintain the improvement wrought in such stocks in face of fresh reaction that cropped out in the general list after middays. The late afternoon found the foregoing leaders pointing downward again with virtually all of the morning's improvement cancelled.

That the oil shares have lost some of the friends who were inclined to pick up these stocks for a long pull some time ago is evident by the talk heard in the financial district quarters which had been discussing the prospects of favorable trade developments in the oil industry are no longer showing any interest in these stocks. There has been considerable liquidation from these sources and this selling in addition to a moderate amount of bear pressure has been responsible for the declining trend in a number of the oil shares recently.

Considerable liquidation in recent sessions was the result of impairment of resources of several speculative individuals and organizations or groups which had been working for higher prices up to a few weeks ago. The steady decline in the favored stocks naturally had its effect on such accounts and finally compelled the lightening of long holdings. There were many occasions when stocks had been supported on the minor setbacks and some of the speculative pools are believed to have increased their holdings as a result of such buying.

Continued Decline on 'Big Board' Causes Sharp Dip In Fuels and Industrials

Prices broke sharply in the initial trading on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange as volume of offerings expanded noticeable under the influence of the continued decline in the New York market.

Fuels gave ground easily under the leadership of Lone Star Gas and Western Public Service, both of which sold at new low prices for the year. Devonian Oil, Shamrock and Arkansas Gas were others in the fuel division which sold below their previous 1930 lows and some of them were under the levels reached in the September break last fall.

Industrial issues declined with the list but their declines were not so wide nor was the volume of offerings so large. Blaw Knox slipped back fractionally as did Home Auto... established a new low at 56.

The selling was thought to represent forced disposition of stock from weakened margin accounts as well as actual liquidation, but odd lot bidders who have become discouraged by the long decline and are lightening their holdings in the hope of repurchases lower down.

CAN DECLARES $1 EXTRA

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—American Can Company declared an extra dividend of $1 a share on the common stock, in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of $1, both payable November 15 to record of October 31.

Action of the directors was taken as reflecting the attitude of the company and its powerful banking sponsors toward the manipulative tactics of professional bears who have been concentrating their selling activities against Can and stocks of similar standing recently.

ANNUAL SAFETY CONGRESS

UNIVERSAL SAFETY

A welcome

This week Pittsburgh entertains the nineteenth annual Safety Congress which promises to be greater in numbers and greater in interest and importance than any of the eighteen that have preceded it. Seven thousand delegates and guests from all parts of the world are expected to attend its sessions. They . . . these seven thousand delegates . . . are devoted to the saving of human lives from accidental death and will discuss ways and means of carrying on the constant fight against a growing accident rate. In this work they should be classed among the world's great humanitarians.

The nineteenth annual Safety Congress is an event of national significance. The Mellon National Bank joins all Pittsburgh in welcoming the congress and wishing it success in all its work.

Multimillionaire Tells Inside Story of Rise

By B. C. FORBES

B. C. Forbes

THE REAL STORY of how Daniel Guggenheim became the mining and smelting king of America should inspire the earnestly ambitious.

Most of the newspaper stories of the late philanthropic magnate do not penetrate into the heart of the man and the whyfor of his success. I got the inside story from Dan himself after months of diplomatic effort—the only time he ever consented to talk intimately about himself.

THE GUGGENHEIM mining fortune sprang from an act of kindness. Meyer Guggenheim befriended a man who had a modest mining property in Colorado. Unable to repay what he owed Guggenheim, the man asked him to compromise by taking an interest in the business. Guggenheim did.

THE OPPORTUNITIES offered by mining and smelting so appealed to the elder Guggenheim that he summoned all his seven sons related to them Aesop's fable about the seven sticks which could be broken easily when separated but which, when bound together, could not be broken and impressed upon them that by working unitedly and industriously they could achieve more than any one of them could hope to do single-handed and ended with the words: "In union there is strength."

The sons acted full-heartedly on that advice.

FORTY YEARS later, when I interviewed in his office multimillionaire Daniel who had led the family to fame and fortune, he said:

"Men — not always young men, either—sometimes come in here and, looking around my office, say: 'I envy you your luxurious office and your opportunities to enjoy the best in life.' I tell them: 'It has taken me 40 years to earn by luxurious office with its beautiful pictures, fresh flowers, and leather-cushioned furniture. Year after year I put up with tremendous hardships, traveling in Mexico, in other foreign countries, and in remote parts of the United States. You prefer the luxuries and refinements of the city, with its automobiles, its splendidly appointed homes. You do not care to make the sacrifices necessary to attain the success which can make the luxuries possible.'"

"What are some of the things necessary to achieve success?" I asked.

"Sacrifice, sacrifice, sacrifice!" Mr. Guggenheim repeated with impressive earnestness and ardor, his mind dwelling upon what he himself had undergone.

"Then above all, you must have tenacity," he went on. "That is the greatest quality. Without it, no man can possibly succeed. One failure, you know leads to another failure—and one success leads to another success. Win out in one thing before giving up and trying another.

"Then, tact is very important. I would rather employ a person of no extraordinary ability but who has great tact, than one of conspicious learning and intelligence without tact.

"Judgment, initiative, energy, all these are most desirable and valuable qualities. But, above all and beyond all, you must have tenacity and tact."

THEN THIS explanation followed:

"If we think it is good business we will go anywhere in the world whether it is Alaska, Chile, Mexico or South America, Africa, or the Orient. If a lot of metal were found in the Arctic we would go after it.

"Roasted pigeons don't fly into one's mouth. You have to discover a pigeon, you have to be able to shoot him, then you must clean him and roast him before you can eat him. So it is with business.

"THE ALMIGHTY has put ores far away from where human beings are. That is why the mining business appeals to so few people. The average New Yorker wants to stay in New York, surrounded with luxuries. He is not willing to go to foreign countries or to uncouth regions, putting up with all sorts of inconveniences, to find properties and develop them. He shrinks from spending 20 or 30 or 40 years meeting tremendous hardships.

"The opportunities are as plentiful today as they ever were, if a man is willing to make the necessary sacrifices.

"When we started in the metal business my father, I well remember, said to us: 'You boys have got to do the trick yourselves by hard work and by not being afraid to make sacrifices. No sacrifice is too great to accomplish what you go after.'

"When you ask me, therefore, for some advice for young men I would repeat that given us by my father—and, I may add, what I have already said: 'Roasted pigeons do not fly into one's mouth.'"

THIS SENTENCE from a letter received by the writer from Mr. Guggenheim is peculiarly timely:

"I never short of a stock in my life."

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—The bond market gave increased evidence today of the strong demand for fixed income securities. In activity that surpassed any session in several months, domestic bonds continued to advance and the response of railroad obligations to the inquiry was especially marked.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 (AP).—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today, were as follows, only unlisted issues omitted. Dollars omitted in sales column. United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars.

MORRIS MARKIN

MERGER AIDS CHECKER CAB

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Approval of the stockholders of the acquisition of controlling interest in Parmelee Transportation Company, world's largest taxicab operating company, gives Checker Cab Manufacturing Corporation the dominating position in the field of taxicab manufacture and operation, according to Morris Markin, president.

Terming the merger a most logical step, Mr. Markin stressed the advantage this alliance would have, not only for the stockholders of both companies, but also for the riding public and independent cab operators. Checker Cab experts say the combination will bring about many economies in manufacturing and operation which will ultimately make these advantages felt.

The latest model of the Checker Cab will be shown to the general public shortly. It embodies new and original features and will be a decided improvement over the present model.

1929 RECORD OIL YEAR

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. The bureau of mines announced that production of crude petroleum in the United States in 1929 amounted to 1,007,323,000 barrels which "constitutes a new high record and represents the first billion barrel year."

Compared with 1928, it registered a gain of 105,849,000 barrels or 12 per cent. The report is an annual canvass of producing and pipe line companies.

In addition to the output of crude petroleum, 82,271,000 barrels of natural gasoline and 3,058,000 barrels of benzol were produced and 108,710,000 barrels of crude and refined oils were imported, making a total supply of 1,271,359,000 barrels.

Stocks of all oils increased 68,156,000 barrels during the year, compared with an increase of 27,782,000 barrels in 1928. Exports of all oils amounted to 163,170,000 barrels, which the bureau of mines pointed out, when deducted from total demand, gave an indicated domestic demand for all oils of 948,083,000 barrels, or an increase of 9 per cent over 1928.

Texas led in the production of crude petroleum with an output of 296,876,000 barrels. California with 292,534,000 barrels was second and Oklahoma with 255,004,000 barrels dropped from second to third.

DAILY TRUE STORY

Mrs. Warren was to sing [illegible] had become engaged to Chan[illegible] know [illegible] and talked about Harri[illegible]

"That's a queer thing to [illegible] adore handsome men, May."

"Sure I know it. That's [illegible] what I mean, women adore handsome men and women who go and marry a handsome man like Chan Smith and while [illegible] are adoring him a whole flock of other women will be adoring him, married and single and what-not. Women who don't care a hoot whether a man is married or single just so they can get him to make love to them."

Man is a queer animal."

Janice laughed at her sister.

It was no less a person than the supposedly timid and old-maidish Louisa M. Alcott who said that. Janice reminded her sister — and do you know what else she said with it?

Pouf—she was an old maid sort of a woman.

People think so. She wrote all those sweet little stories for sissy-goody-goody young folks to be sure, but for the No Name series she wrote a novel called Mephistopheles and it was something to write home about. Naughty and sophisticated to a fault. But it was credited to Louisa that she said: Man is a queer animal, the queerest of all animals except woman."

Just the same Janice, Mrs. Warren insisted, we were talking about handsome men and how they aren't just the best sort of husbands because all the women are after them.

I know, May, but I told you that Chan loves me, he wouldn't notice all the women who chased after him.

Man can love very much he can love and yet be cautious against the attentions of other women.

Marries Mr. Smith

She married Chandler Smith that early summer and they went on a nice long vacation trip away out to Oregon where Janice's brother Charles lived.

There were five girls in Janice's family and Charles was the only brother. All the sisters adored him and looked up to him as one of the world's wonders of manliness, cleverness and goodness.

Charles had a handsome home in this Oregon city and just outside he had an immense apple orchard where those big handsome but flawless apples grow that are wrapped up and dolled up and sold for fancy prices — the keep-the-doctor-away type.

Charles Hastings welcomed his sister and her husband. Janice was the second girl. Her sister May was the oldest and had married very young. Janice had been the one to take care of baby brother most of all the five girls in the family and she regarded him as her own special charge. She hinted to Chan that the fact that Charles was one perfectly clean and moral man was due to her very own early training.

Charles had a nice little wife and a year-old son. He was prospering immensely and everything seemed to be just about right.

He and Chan went salmon fishing several times. On one of their trips they stopped at a river farm where Charles seemed to be quite well known. A Polly Watson owned the farm. She was a pretty little blonde widow and kept a farm manager and his wife there to run things. Evidently Polly was quite prosperous.

She was certainly quite gay. Chan saw that she and Charles were certainly good friends the way she greeted Charles. A little later Chan saw Charles holding Polly very close to him and kissing her. Charles came out to the porch.

"Too hot, sun too high to fish for a couple of hours, Chan," he said. "better take a little siesta here in the hammock. I'm going to help Mrs. Watson with her books."

Chan wondered if Mrs. Watson kept her books down in the camp by the river, for that is where she and Charlie went for a couple of hours.

Remains Silent

Chan said nothing. He was glad Janice didn't notice this. Janice believed Charles to be absolutely perfect. So did Charles sweet little wife. Chan felt like socking Charles good and plenty and telling him that with such a sweet wife and baby he was a fool and worse to bother with the widow or with any woman outside his home.

One day Chan borrowed the little runabout to go out to Appledore, the name of Charles' great apple orchard. Charles had what he called a lodge out there and in the picking and packing season he slept out there to superintend the big gang of men who worked for him.

Chan had been out several times before.

This time he found out from Jenkins, the keeper of the orchard, that Mr. Hastings hadn't been out there that day. Chan drove back after a while and said nothing. Charles returned about dark.

"Well, I certainly had a busy day of it. We got in four carloads of fertilizer for the orchard, and I had to stick around and see that it was hauled over and housed properly," he said.

"Charles works awfully hard," Jeannette said.

Charles Uneasy

Farm Profitable

They drove away before Chan could stop them.

Chan was ugly. He drove Polly Watson to her home and he told her what he thought of her. Then he went over to the property he had bought and boarded with a farmer.

When [illegible] could get enough sense to trust me," he wrote to Janice, "come on out here where I am living."

Janice sent back one sentence.

"I know what I saw — goodbye."

Janice went home to have her sister May say, "I told you so." All in due time Chan was notified of the divorce. He didn't contest.

Chan built a handsome home.

If Janice wanted to be a dashed jealous fool, all right. He could find another wife, a second Mrs. Smith.

He could find plenty, but somehow he just couldn't make up his mind to marry any of them.

Two years had passed. Chan's orchard was thriving and going to pay him almost all the money he had spent in fixing it up for a bumper crop.

Meanwhile Charles' wife learned the truth about him and rushed home to her people in the East. Charles came home to get her, extremely contrite, so contrite that he confessed everything and promised to be good. His wife made him tell his sister the whole truth about that night at the lodge and about the rest.

The next day Chan got a wire.

"How would I do as the second Mrs. Smith? — Janice."

Chan wired back.

"If you want to try anything twice, come on."

The second Mrs. Smith has learned a good lesson. She says she is much happier now than when she was the First Mrs. Smith.

HERE'S A TRUE STORY TO RING YOUR HEART

Illustration shows how Rev. Joseph B. Sickles, of Rushville, Ill., fell into the hands of sharpers and was taken in and done for like a common sinner.

Note—The following account appeared in the Police Gazette, November 29, 1879, and is reproduced for the benefit of those who didn't happen to go to the barber that week and therefore missed the issue. Anyone having snappy old Police Gazette clippings is urged to forward them to our Research Committee.

PLUCKING A PARSON

RUSHVILLE, Ill.—Rev. Joseph B. Sickles, pastor of a church of this city, fell among sharpers and was badly victimized on occasion of his trip to the metropolis of New York. The scene was in a Canal street bar room into which Rev. Sickles was inveigled under the pretense of it being a tea sample office belonging to the son of a member of his Rushville congregation, and there induced to witness the explanation of a stranger as to how he had just been fleeced of a large sum of money at three card monte. The pretended victim then proceeded to illustrate with the cards, and during the operation the reverend gentleman was induced to put up $40. With the $40 on the table the swindlers started an alarm of police and ran out of the place, the clergyman precipitately following them. He complained to police and demanded that the gang be arraigned at the bar of justice.

Coal and Iron Police Big Issue in Campaign

The coal and iron police system is one of the big issues in the gubernatorial campaign. Gifford Pinchot, the Republican nominee, recognized this from the start. He made the abolition of the coal and iron police one of the outstanding planks in his platform, and at the very outset of his campaign.

John M. Hemphill, the Democratic nominee, while professing to be also in favor of the abolition of the system, rather belittles it as an issue, questions Pinchot's sincerity, and says he makes promises that he cannot keep.

It may or may not be significant in this connection that Don Rose is for Hemphill and has been appointed on a committee that is working for his election.

Don Rose is general counsel for the Pittsburgh Coal Company and a director of one of its subsidiary companies.

The Pittsburgh Coal Company is one of the largest employers of coal and iron police, and the Pittsburgh Coal Company's coal and iron police have been the worst offenders against justice and humanity. They have been guilty of innumerable outrages, culminating in the beating to death of John Borkowski.

Radio Show Offers All Something of Interest

Pittsburgh's fifth annual radio show, which opened in Duquesne Garden last night and will continue throughout the week, deserves a large attendance.

Radio broadcasting originated here. On November 2, 1920, Station KDKA transmitted the election returns in the Harding-Cox contest. It is estimated that 500 persons received the broadcast, mostly through crystal sets. Regular radio listeners in the United States are now believed to number 40,000,000. This invention, which in the short space of 10 years has built up so gigantic an industry and has exercised such profound influence on modern life, merits the attention of everyone who desires to keep up with the times.

The radio show not only affords an opportunity to see what has been done, but gives insight into developments of the future. Television and remote control are demonstrated, and there are a number of technical exhibits that reveal what goes on behind the scenes when the stations are broadcasting.

Training Schools for Sunday School Teachers

It is always gratifying to learn of efforts to strengthen the Sunday School system. The Allegheny County Sabbath School Association is to be commended for the effort in this direction which it is making through its ambitious plan for the training of teachers.

Night schools for the instruction of those who are conducting classes or wish to conduct them are being established one week in eight centers distributed throughout the country. The plan gives assurance that the Sunday School lesson will be taught, not in a haphazard way, according to the individual notions of the teachers, but in accordance with sound principles of pedagogy.

Sunday Schools play an important part in education, and it is very desirable that the teachers should have guidance, so that they may perform their task in the most intelligent manner.

While parents can be relied upon to instill in their children regard for morality and right living, the Sunday School is indispensable for making them familiar with the Bible. And, entirely apart from religious considerations, every child should be made acquainted with that great Book because of the influence it has had on mankind and also, because, to English speaking people at least, it is the outstanding classic of our literature.

The best possible teaching should be procured for this educational work.

Spread of Communism Among Coal Miners

Ellis Searles, editor of the United Mine Workers Journal, has rendered a service, in his testimony before the Fish committee investigating Communist activities in the United States, by directing attention to the deplorable condition of the soft coal industry.

His testimony was of special interest to Pittsburgh not only because of the evidence he presented concerning the "Redness" of the National Miners' Union, formed in Pittsburgh by secession from the United Mine Workers and maintaining national headquarters here, but also because his description of the present situation in the bituminous coal industry applies more fitly to Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and Northern West Virginia, perhaps, than to any other section.

Pointing out that unemployment, and low wages for those fortunate enough to get work, have made coal miners susceptible to Communist propaganda, Mr. Searles urged that Congress do something to regulate the coal industry and stabilize it upon a sound and substantial basis. That is, of course, more easily said than done. Difficult or impossible as it may seem, the task nevertheless deserves the untiring thought of Congress, not so much, perhaps, on account of the Communist menace as because the present demoralization in the coal industry has an adverse effect on the prosperity of millions.

De Broglie and Wave Mechanics

By Archibald Henderson

The winner of the Nobel prize for physics in 1929, Professor Louis de Broglie, of the Henri Poincare Institute in Paris, has given new impetus to the study of a fascinating topic known as wave mechanics. He has set into juxtaposition the current theories of light and matter, and shown the necessity for the orientation of scientific attitude toward these two theories.

Some years ago, De Broglie set himself the task of raising scientifically the following questions: If for a century we have neglected too much the corpuscular aspects in the theory of light in our exclusive attachment to waves, have we not erred in the opposite direction in the theory of matter? Have we not wrongly neglected the point of view of waves and thought only of corpuscles?

According to the old mechanics, the wave associated with a moving particle and advancing in the direction of motion is propagated according to the laws of geometrical optics. According to the new mechanics, the approximations of geometrical optics are not sufficiently accurate to describe the process. According to this new undulating conception of dynamics, a cloud consisting of electrons with the same velocity must be associated with what is known as a plane monochromatic wave.

A remarkable series of experiments, in testing these notions, have recently been carried out by Davisson and Germer in New York, by Prof. G. P. Thompson in Aberdeen, and by Rupp in Goettingen. These results have clearly established the necessity of introducing simultaneously particles and waves into the whole domain of physics.

How is it possible to reconcile two such disparate and dissimilar concepts as corpuscular and undulatory movement? How find room for both corpuscles and waves in the same physical phenomenon? Schroedinger suggests that we should think of the particle or electron as constituted by a group of waves. But this ingenious "wave packet" theory, while explaining many of the physical phenomena, breaks down in the case of the diffraction of an electron by a crystal. In his Introduction to the Study of Wave Mechanics, he has explained his own theory of the "pilot-wave," but confesses that it cannot be regarded as satisfactory. The most favored theory has been expounded by Heisenberg and Bohr. Unfortunately, they assume that the so-called wave does not represent a physical phenomenon taking place in a region of space, but rather as a symbolic representation of what we know about the particle. Such a theory but accentuates our present ignorance, and shows the illusory nature of many current physical theories.

Fred Hampton can't understand why his wife isn't happy. He is sure that no husband could be better to a woman.

In the first place, he didn't enter into marriage lightly. He felt that marriage was a very serious business—so he waited until he was 30. And while he waited he carefully built a vision of the ideal wife. She was to have all the traits which Fred most admired—and none of the traits he disliked. He was very explicit about these traits. She was to move in a certain manner, dress in certain colors, feel in certain ways, even admire certain of Fred's pet foods and fancies.

Of course, Fred's ideal was simply a feminine reflection of HIMSELF, but he did not realize that. Nor did he realize that, in worshipping this ideal, he was merely worshipping F. H. He sincerely thought that he was one of the few guys who had a real respect for women—and he thought he was getting ready to do some girl a big favor by picking her out to fit his ideal.

So in due time Marjory came along and was picked. Almost before she knew it little, giggly Marjory Brown was serious Mrs. Fred Hampton—and wishing she wasn't! Why? That's what Fred would like to know.

For, as we've noted, Fred thinks that he's the perfect husband. Isn't he doing all that he planned to do for the ideal woman . . . bring her flowers . . . make pretty speeches . . . have long, grave discussions on the worth-while things of life? He is. Isn't he prepared to adore her if she'll just appreciate him and act the way he thinks an ideal should act? He is. But there's the catch—she won't! Instead the ungrateful creature mopes around, and embarrasses and irritates him by doing all sorts of things he detests. Indeed, she even ridicules his devoted efforts and snaps him up without rhyme and reason.

But there's really no mystery about it and he isn't badly used. Fred thinks he is loving Marjory. Actually he is doing nothing of the sort. He is still loving that ideal which he created out of his own whimsies . . . that pale reflection of himself. It is doubtful if he has even seen Marjory, the woman, or if he would have any use for her if he did. For Marjory, though a perfectly nice little person in herself, doesn't in the least fit Fred's ideal. Nor want to. And she is naturally indignant and bewildered when Fred tries to make her conform to his pattern—and treats her like a criminal when she doesn't.

Sounds perfectly ridiculous when you see it on paper, doesn't it? Yet, how often have you done exactly the same thing. Made a pretty pattern out of your own notions, hung it on some one in the name of love . . . and then raised cain because your loved one insisted on being himself or herself instead of a reflection of you.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

There was a fellow from Missouri went up to Chicago to see the town, and he walked into a swell restaurant to eat. He sat down, and right away he was scared by the expensive look of the joint. There was waiters in swallow-tail coats and fine white tablecloths and a lot of style. So the man from Missouri just drank the glass of water they put at his plate, and got up and started for the door.

"Here," says one of the head flunkies at the door, "you ain't going, are you?"

"Yep, I'm going."

"Well," says the Missourian, "you can't hardly expect me to stagger out, can you?"

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

Joy's Dwelling

Joy dwells, I know,
In the king's palace,
Like wine aglow
In a golden chalice.

Joy goes along
Where the king wanders,
Its notes like song
That the skylark squanders.

Joy does not care
For barren places,
For meager fare
And poor men's faces.

Yet, how strange! I heard
As I came hither
Such rapture stirred
As naught can wither.

In a glad tune
From a poor hut winging,
As sweet as June—
A child's voice singing!

And yet I saw,
Where the sunlight dances,
Joy without flaw
In a gypsy's glances!

Text for Today

Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God.—Matthew, v:8.

(The text for today is suggested by the Rev. M. Herbert Messner, pastor, Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Carrick.)

"Bugs" Baer Says:

We're Nuts on Service

America has gotten over the merger epidemic and is going in for service.

Service is something you get when you walk into a high powered lunch wagon and ask for food.

It is efficiency mixed with technique and powdered with courtesy. It means you get a two-minute egg in a minute even if you can afford to wait.

The employes of all big corporations are drilled and molded into paragons of skill and service. Even the bouncers of two-flight speakeasies are so expert that they boot you for a parabola that eliminates the first landing.

The big telegraph companies showed the way by carrying service to the bursting point. They furnish tailor-made telegrams for special events. You don't have to ruin your head by thinking. Just pick out your pet telegram and sign your name.

A telegraph company can pick out your thoughts and actions in advance. They arrest Gypsy fortune tellers for doing the same thing.

The first service man sat down and thought one day that a grapefruit was a lemon that had seen its opportunity and seized it. As a matter of corroborated detail, a grapefruit is a disappointed water melon.

But when a service demon is ambushed by a brilliant idea he goes right on through with it until the boss taps him on the wrong shoulder and the grand march becomes a series of scrams and lamms.

Of course it gets annoying after a while when you have to plow knee deep through service in order to get something accomplished.

But we hand the old stale laurel wreath to the big telegraph companies for bringing service right into barber shops and filling stations. You can now send wires from the restricted terrains of the West and the end chairs of the East.

All barber shops are telegraph offices and you can transact important business beneath a wave of foamy lather or empty another man's bank while your tank is being filled.

If your telegram matures while you are being shaved, the barber puts a no parking sign on your chin, grabs a messenger's cap and gallops off to the lurking suburbs. He delivers your message, returns and finishes the shave. And, if that isn't service, then a grocer never had a paper bag.

Nothing is wasted in this country. Not even when it should be thrown away. And the rush for efficiency usually winds up in something entirely different like a man trying to reach sea level by drinking his coffee out of the saucer.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

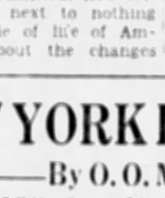
II.—Do Races Become Senile?

Natural Selection will account for the great bulk of straightline evolution. But when all such cases are eliminated in which an obvious biological advantage plays the rudder that keeps the evolutionary course straight, there are still some examples to explain.

The most striking come from among the Ammonites. These animals, so abundant in the seas of the Mesozoic or Secondary Era (IV) grow progressively more richly sculptured with successive chambers more intricately dovetailed into each other, as the millenia pass.



H. G. Wells

Finally, not long (geologically speaking) before their final and complete disappearance, a number of quite new types appeared. The beautiful spiral became wholly or partially unrolled and the regular gave place to the fantastic.

It has been found difficult even to guess at any biological advantage which might explain the existence of many of these later and stranger forms; and Alpheus Hyatt, the American palaeontologist, followed by many later authors, has sought to explain them as an expression of what he called "racial senility," due to some kind of inevitable degeneration of the germ-plasm of the group comparable to the slow individual ageing that Mr. Everyman cannot avoid, and similarly heralding an inevitable and internally determined extinction.

The previous trend towards elaboration of sculpture and dovetailing he and his followers would interpret as due to the agechanges of the germ-plasm during its maturity.

There are really two ideas here combined—that of racial aging and that of orthogenesis. If it could be definitely shown that these latest types of Ammonites derived no biological advantage from their bizarre shapes, we should be forced to accept an orthogenetic explanation of internally determined evolution.

It must be admitted, however, that we knew next to nothing about the mode of life of Ammonites, or about the changes which may have been taking place in the late Mesozoic (IV) seas. The example reminds us of our ignorance and warns us to keep the idea of orthogenesis in reserve in case it proves necessary after all.

But our experience of the Tertianotheres and their horns also gives us a warning—that we may discover some advantage lurking in the background of apparently quite useless happenings.

It is perhaps wise to suspend judgment. It would be rash to demand a wholly new principle of evolution to account for what is almost an isolated case before we are certain that other methods of proved efficacy are entirely ruled out.

Racial senescence is another matter. The idea of racial senescence is only a metaphor, taken over from the individual life cycle, and to this the self-reproducing stream of germ plasm presents no similarities; the phrase is not really anything more than an analogy, and a loose one at that. But the idea has often been toyed with, usually by paleontologists.

According to the upholders of this view, the signs of racial old age include the development of bizarre shape and of great bulk, and especially the production of horns and spines and other excrescenses.

Indeed, there is example after example where such exuberance in a race heralds its extinction.

But when we look into the matter, what do we find? We find that these characteristics are often displayed by stocks which soon afterward go down the evolutionary hill and become wholly extinct.

That is all. It is an interesting fact, but that the specialization of the spininess are expressions of anything comparable to senility of this no proof is forthcoming.

The explanation of the actual facts seems to be quite different. Specialization, as we have seen, tends to be pushed on by natural selection toward a limit.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—All my life, save a boyhood period of living with my grandmother, I have resided in hotels. So after a fashion I have grown up with bellhops and watch many flower into merchant princes, theatrical producers, stage and screen stars and bootleg kings.

Following a recent experiment in housekeeping, which is perfectly dandy thanks, the feature most missed in the new regime is the bell hop. He had become as necessary in my life as the telephone. He was the eternal soother of that mysterious abstraction we call the human mind.

He brought the mail, newspapers, kept unwelcome visitors away, aired the dog, tipped off the latest dirty book, below stairs whisperings and often had a hot 20-to-1 selection at Belmont or Havre de Grace. In my case he was often not only a friend but counsellor.

Few young men are so shrewd as your experienced bell hop. His wits have been sharpened on the flagstones of experience. He know his—whatever the reigning vegetable is. And in his seasonal migratory flights to Havana, Palm Beach, Tia Juana he learned to know people. Not many fool him.

I may have been fortunate in my contact with bell hops, but I have yet to run across one of the fraternity who was disloyal or have I ever caught one in a dishonest act. They have had innumerable chances to steal clothes, money and jewelry, with little chance of detection. But they never have.

Bellboys have been entrusted with extremely important missions without a single fumble. There is one unforgettable instance. During an after midnight holdup in a hotel lobby a bellboy risked his life to shove me into an elevator and slam the self-locking doors while guns were pointed at his red head.

But when you leave the bellboy's world his interest dies. Today I ran across one who had laboured in three hotels where I lived. I told him of my new manner of living. He listened in obvious boredom, exhaled a deep drag from his cigaret and commented: "Yeah?"

O, yes, I almost forgot. One of the problems in a non-hotel existence is what to do about stationery. Anything to make it tough for McIntyre! Incidentally, fellow thieves, there is swell stationery at the new Pierre's, gold embossed and a smart address, but the house dick has the tenacity of a bound trailing covered wagon.

* * *

For many years the Gibson House in Cincinnati was my stationer. But one day—indeed practically over night — they made you ask for it from the room clerk and while they lost a customer the Sinton won one.

* * *

Pervid gestures were made by little shops on Broadway to keep going during the lowest days of the summer depression. A fierce window card in flaming red next the Winter Garden announced: "Come in, select your wants, pay what you please. We ask to live." The frankness attracted many passersby.

* * *

An economist calls the worst sag of the summer—and can you handle it?—a "mere hypothetical hiatus." But I prefer the observation of the hardware merchant of our town who wrote me last August: "Prosperity is getting no further than you can kick a bass drum."

Nothing is quite so disarming as flattery. This morning, in the warpath I visited a dry cleaning establishment that not only had torn most of the buttons off a suit but had not left enough lining to dust off an oboe. After I aired my grievance and right in the middle of my nastiest look, he observed: "I read your article. Pretty good, too." I'm shaken than anything detecting a public clamor for my stuff that I so we parted with a warm handshake. It wasn't much of a row anyhow.

Peter B. Kyne, the author, has rounded into the metropolis after a long stay in his native California. The glum looking Kyne is not only a master fictionist but one of the wittiest of raconteurs. He is reputed to have kept a dinner party in constant roar from 8 o'clock until 3 a. m. the other night.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

As an employer you may be in a position to do considerable harm or good to the employes of another man.

It is unfair to make complaint about an employe who is carrying out orders that don't please you as an outsider or a competitor.

Of course, if employes use methods that you think the proprietor would not support, you have just cause for complaint.

But even so, you should give the employe a chance to change his tactics or explain his position before you register a complaint that might cause him to lose a position.

As head of a department or as proprietor of a business you may feel that you don't care much for the attitude of those directly under you, as they must come to your terms.

But it is a man of small caliber who will take advantage of his position to procure the removal of a man who displeases him.

Then how do you treat the representatives of other firms who call on you?

Your establishment has something to sell, and your men must be to those who handle your line.

You insist they see each purchasing head, but become very arrogant if the salesman of another firm insists upon seeing you personally. Is it fair?
